POST-SCRIPTS By GEORGE ROTHWELL BROWN

"What an old tale is this!
I grant this argument is old; but truth
No years impair."

The radio is a great invention but where Miss Gilda Gray is concerned we'd swap a whole broadcasting station for one pair of opera glasses.

"Myself when young did eagerly frequent Doctor and Saint, and heard great argument
About it and about; but evermore Came out by the same door where in I went."

Since everybody else is talking about the well-known subject the Senate judiciary committee probably feels that it may as well get in, but having had some experience in the eternal debate we predict that the drys and wets will come out by the same door where they went.

If Lieut. Mina Van Winkle would buy Green's History of the English People, instead of the latest number of Snappy Stories, she might learn something to the advantage of all of us.

We find little trouble in believing the report that women scientists of Leningrad have discovered a revolutionary short radio wave, as that's where the revolutionary short-hair wave started.

When the Capper mothers' pension bill is finally enacted into law, the fact that she succeeded for the first time in the history of the city in solidifying public opinion in Washington ought to be a great consolation to Miss Sophie Irene Butinsky.

The House juggles the bill to permit women to serve on juries back to the calendar, just when it looked as though a lot of afternoon bridge parties might be broken up.

A German torpedo similar to the one which sank the Lusitania will occupy the place at the War College where the Statue of Frederick the Great formerly stood. "And thus the whirling of time brings in his revenge."

Floor Leader Tilton's doleful prediction of a deficit in 1927 doubtless was issued before he learned that in spite of that—that is to say, because of the—recent reduction in income taxes, receipts are in excess of the fondest dreams. It's a safe bet that there'll be no tax increase on the eve of a campaign.

Gerald Chapman, who used to secure a stay of execution by the old reliable method of digging through eight feet of solid granite and reinforced concrete with a saw made from the top of a sardine can, now pins his faith to a mere writ of habeas corpus. How are the mighty fallen!

Senator Borah doesn't seem to care a bit whether he helps Sir Austen Chamberlain to hold his job or not.

This strict order to the police to enforce the modesty law down there indicates that Palm Beach is attempting what you might call a Miami "take off."

The Chicago capitalists who settle a business deal in a $25,000 golf game have high finance right down to a tee.

The Van Swearingens appear to be growing a little nervous—here's another Nickel Plate wreck.

Wonder what the verdict would be if the Senate were voting today?

Georgia will unveil in Statuary Hall a statue of the discoverer of ether anesthesia. Instead of a Confederate General. Maybe this will convince the G. A. R. that the civil war's over.

That pop-gun going off today is nothing serious—South Dakota is merely formally opening the 1926 Congressional campaign.

One gathers from the Congressional debate that Commissioner Fenning's clients are nutty.

The House passes the bill providing for an additional wing to the jail, but do the police really reserve this subtle compliment?

Senate at Albany defeats a State prohibition enforcement bill,
New York having trouble enough as it is not enforcing one law, much less two.

Brooklyn gentleman, who tries to explain to President Coolidge how to relieve the congestion in deporting bootleggers to Canada, finds himself a potential ward of Commissioner Fenning. Somebody is always making business.

BLANTON CHARGES COMBINE EXPLOITS INSANE VETERANS

2 Fennings, Dr. White and Coroner Nevitt Are Linked in Debate.

2 HOUSE INQUIRIES HELD TO BE LIKELY

Commissioner Said to Have 100 Cases at St. Elizabeths Hospital.

Two investigations centering on Commissioner Frederick A. Fenning loomed in Congress yesterday in the wake of charges that a combine exists here to handle mental patients.
Pursuing the attack made last week by other members of the House, Representative Blanton, of Texas, linked the commissioner, his brother, Carl Fenning, "in a key position in the Department of Justice," Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt, the commissioner's brother-in-law,
the establishment of Joseph Gawler's Sons in an alleged combine to exploit insane persons.
"It is a disgrace to Washington," he declared.

Cites Judge Sellers' Charges.

The importance of this "line-up,"
Mr. Blanton declared, may be seen in the practice relating to committing mental patients here. He declared that he had found that the charges of Judge Sellers, of the juvenile court, that any policeman or policeman could commit a person were true.

"Any policeman can arrest without warrant anyone he deems of unsound mind," said Mr. Blanton.
"Then he with another officer or person executes the affidavits; then he gets two physicians (usually the professionals ready and waiting) to execute the unsworn certificates, and then into Gallinger hospital behind the bars the poor person goes for so-called observation.

"And when any person is under observation for alleged mental disorder, the most natural things that they do are always deemed the best evidence of their unsoundness of mind. And by the end of the week, when there has accumulated in Gal-linger hospital a police patrol wagon full of them, a blank temporary commitment to St. Elizabeths is filled out for each one of them, and these blanks are then sent to the District building, where as many as two of the commissioners perfunctorily sign them all, and then the poor, unfortunate are all huddled into the patrol wagon and into St. Elizabeths they go, when no warrant has ever issued, no trial has ever been had and no chance has ever been given them to prove their sanity."

Kept 8 Months at Hospital.

These are supposed to be 30-day commitments, explained Mr. Blanton, but there have been numbers of cases where the patients were kept eight months. Dr. White can explain that they are physically disabled or insane "as an excuse for not bringing them to court," he said.

Besides the resolution of Representative Hammer, of North Carolina, in the course of preparation, which seeks an investigation of Mr.
Fenning, friction at the District building and the woman's bureau, Mr. Blanton declared that he would introduce one tomorrow seeking an inquiry into the alleged combine.

Representative Underhill, of Massachusetts, engaging in a spirited tilt with the Texan, declared that if the latter's charges were true
"nearly every District official, Dr.
White and the veterans' bureau should be in jail."

75 World War Cases.
Of the more than 100 cases now in St. Elizabeths for whom Mr.
Fenning is guardian, Mr. Blanton exhibited a letter from the veterans' bureau to show that 75 are world war veterans. He has a "bonanza," declared Mr. Blanton, having only to "clip his coupons." Although Mr. Fenning is understood to have told members of the House that he has averaged 5 per cent of the veterans' bureau letter says that in "practically all" of the 75 veterans' cases he gets a fee of 10 per cent on income, and when they die, 10 per cent on their estate.
Speaking under the handicap of a high fever, Mr. Blanton characterized the commissioner as a "Dr.
Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," "Foolish Fenning" and the "lunacy lawyer."
Besides Mr. Underhill, who deprecated "without defending the commissioner."

Fenning Denies He Asked Veterans' Bureau Business

Commissioner Frederick A. Fenning, in answering the attacks made on him by Congress, in an exclusive statement to The Post last night declared:

As an attorney I have given special attention to lunacy matters for 24 years, during all of which time I have been appointed from time to time as committee. This began long before the world war. I did not seek veterans' bureau business. I was asked by the war risk insurance bureau during the administrations of Director Lindsay and Director Cholmel-Jones to take up certain cases of veterans in order that the way might be paved for the allowance and payment of their claims. These requests were in writing and I have the original letter in each case.

In the Hall case, in which I understand Representative
Green, of Florida, said that I had myself appointed committee and would not consent to the patient's transfer to Georgia, I have such a letter from the war risk insurance bureau asking me to communicate with the patient's father, and the court records show that both the father and the mother united in asking the court to appoint me. Furthermore, I wrote the veterans' bureau in 1924 agreeing to the transfer of this patient, but for medical reasons the bureau did not make such transfer. All of this is a matter of record.

Practically no new applications have been made in cases of this nature for two or more years. I am continuing to discharge the trusts reposed in me by the court in cases in which I have been appointed, and I shall so continue. No one can say in truth that I have in any wise shirked the duties of a District commissioner, a position which I did not seek, but for the duties of which I have a conscientious regard.

CITY HELD NOT READY FOR COMMUNITY CHEST

Committee Has Reached That Decision, Associated Charities Told.

COMING, HYDE ASSERTS

The special committee appointed to consider a community chest has decided that Washington is not yet ready for that method of raising money for charitable organizations. It was reported last night at a meeting of the Associated Charities in Rauscher's.

Under the community chest plan,
the money needed for local charities would all be collected in a single big drive and then apportioned to the various organizations according to their needs. The committee of citizens, which was appointed by Commissioner Cuno H.
Rudolph, has not yet made public its findings.

Dorsey W. Hyde, jr., president of the Monday Evening club, warned those at the meeting not to "banish the community chest idea" from their minds. The time is coming, he said, when Washington will have to have a community chest.

Allen T. Burns, of New York, executive director of the American Association of Community organizations, was the principal speaker at the meeting. He discussed the community chest plan at length, but avoided saying whether it would be a good plan in Washington.

"There is nothing that threatens philanthropy so much today as the great multiplicity of philanthropic drives," Mr. Burns said. The danger is that the givers will think that the chaos and confusion in this multiplicity of drives reflects chaos and confusion in our charitable organizations. The givers become suspicious of us."

It is a policy of his organization not to advocate the community chest for any particular city, Mr.
Burns said. The problem, he said, is one that the city itself must work out.

To the credit of the community chest plan, he said, is the fact that it has increased contributions from 30 to 200 per cent in the ten years

ENFORCEMENT BILL DEFEATED AT ALBANY

Vote of 27 to 24 Applauded
by Galleries in New York Senate Chamber.

Albany, N. Y., March 22 (By A.

statute books a State prohibition enforcement act was defeated in the Senate tonight by a vote of 27 to 24.

MANY TOWNS LOOTED WHEN TIENTSIN FALLS

National Armies Retreating to

RECKLESS FIRING IN CITY

Tientsin, March 22 (By A. P.).—
This city of 750,000 inhabitants was evacuated completely today by the Kuominchun, or national army troops in their retreat toward Peking, 86 miles, before the victorious troops of Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian dictator, and those of his allies from the province of Shantung.

The city was thrown into a brief panic by the sudden appearance of hundreds of armed men wearing armlets of Gen. Li Ching-ling, former civil governor of Chihli province. They had secreted themselves in the Japanese and French settlements, and rushed into the native city in automobiles while the last detachment of the Kuominchun troops was marching to the central station to take trains toward Peking.

A few Kuominchun stragglers were shot by Li Ching-ling's soldiers, who also frequently fired mauser rifles into the air. Presently the firing ceased.

Gen. Li Ching-ling was reported to be at the Central railway station while Gen. Chang Tsungchang, governor of Shantung province, his associate, took possession of West station.

There were numerous casualties in the city, owing to the reckless firing by Li Ching-ling's troops, but there was little looting. It is reported, however, that villages along the line of march from Man-chang were looted by the retreating soldiers of the third Kuominchun troops.

The Peking-Mukden railway was occupied this morning by Chang forces.

Taku was evacuated during the night and the situation at the port has become normal.

Eight thousand troops of the Kuominchun have encamped at Pehsang and are establishing lines temporarily to hold up the pursuit of their comrades fleeing toward Peking.

$25,000 Difference Settled by Golf Game

Pasadena, Calif., March 22 (By A.
P.).—Archie M. Andrews won a $25,000 golf match from Frederick Bartlett here today, when the two former Chicago capitalists mixed pleasure with business.

As a result of the victory, Andrews will receive $575,000 from Bartlett for the Andrews building in Chicago, instead of $550,000, which would have been the price had the match gone the other way.
Andrews was given two strokes on each 18 holes and won the 36 holes of play.

OIL CITY, FLOODED, FACES FIRE PERIL; FUEL PIPE BROKEN

Water in Business Area
Rises 5 Feet in Only Few Minutes.

FIREMEN SAVE MANY TRAPPED IN OFFICES

Girl Workers Are Carried Out; Ice Gorges Holding Fast; Light Plant Fails.

Oil City, Pa., March 22 (By A. P.).
A steadily rising river, a drizzle of rain and a melting temperature combined tonight to throw fear into the hearts of Oil City residents that the flood which already has driven 150 families from their homes and caused damage estimated at from $2,500,000 to $5,000,000, would reach a more serious stage by tomorrow.

The city tonight was in darkness, an ice movement this afternoon having torn away a steel tower supporting wires that carried temporary power here from Clarion.

Streets were patrolled by more than four score special policemen, recruited from among national guardsmen and members of the American Legion.

Residents driven from their homes by the rapidly rising water were being cared for by friends, the Salvation Army and the Red Cross.

200 Business Places Flooded.

The flood area tonight covered a district ten blocks long and four blocks wide. The water was from three to five feet deep and approximately 200 business places were flooded.

Industry generally throughout the city was at a standstill today, due to high water and lack of electricity power. Newspapers were forced to cease publication. Telegraph company workers were driven from their offices and established temporary headquarters where operators worked by candlelight.

An additional menace was discovered tonight when it was found an oil line crossing Oil creek had broken, adding danger of an oil fire.

Fire Marshall A. G. Dolby immediately ordered the stream patrolled to prevent any one with lights approaching the vicinity.

Ice Gorges Still Holding

The flood, generally admitted to be the worst ever experienced in this section, assumed disastrous proportions this afternoon when a new movement of ice in the Allegheny river sent Oil creek up from five to seven feet within ten minutes. The gorges, however, continue to hold.

The 6-mile ice pack between Oil city and Franklin was breaking up slowly, government observers reported.

Suburb of London Will Fly Red Flag

London, March 22 (By A. P.).— Bermondsey, a London borough largely inhabited by working class people, has decided to fly the red flag over its town hall instead of the union jack, thus following the example of its sister borough, Battersea.

J. A. W. Douglas, secretary of the council, said no disrespect was intended toward the union jack.
There is a growing tendency for boroughs to fly their own flags, and as the old union jack was worn out, Bermondsey decided to buy a new red flag.

Does Not Want Strife.

After stating that neither he nor
the so-called irreconcilable group
in the Senate desired to see turmoil
and hatred and strife continue in Europe, Mr. Borah said:

LEAGUE'S INTRIGUE UNDER HEAVY FIRE IN SENATE DEBATE

Supporters Dwindle as European Diplomacy Is Attacked.

HOUGHTON DEFENDED
FOR ASSERTING TRUTH

Borah Leads Offensive Against Geneva, Charging Secret Understandings.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Europe's latest chapter of secret diplomacy and intrigue became the subject of debate in the Senate for nearly two hours yesterday, with a dwindling number of League of Nations defenders seeking to defend if not justify the Geneva collapse.

Ambassador Houghton's right to talk frankly to newspaper correspondents about the delicate European situation was challenged by Senators Harrison, Swanson and Glass, and defended by Borah, Moses, Johnson, Shipstead and Fess.

Senator Harrison went so far as to say that the State Department should repudiate Mr. Houghton's statements and that Mr. Houghton should be recalled if it was found that he had transgressed. In reply, the Ambassador's defenders said in effect that the country should be proud to have a diplomatic representative who was not afraid to tell the truth about the Locarno program, and its relation to the proposed arms conference to which America is to send delegates.

The speech of Senator Borah, chairman of the foreign relations committee, came as the climax of the debate. If Europe, and especially league circles, have been stirred by the reports of Mr. Hough-ton's statements they will be still further aroused by what Mr. Borah said on the Senate floor yesterday.

The senator from Idaho, who is averse to secret diplomacy on principle, and who has conferred at length with Mr. Houghton since the latter saw the President, called a spade a spade.

Frank Assertions.

Among the frank assertions which Mr. Borah offered for the consideration of European capitals, as well as for the American people whom he believes should be fully informed, were the following:

First—"The direct cause of the Geneva collapse was the secret understandings which the powers made at Locarno against the very people they were pretending to befriend."

Second—"Sir Austen Chamberlain did not go to Geneva as a free agent, but was bound by a secret understanding, whereby Poland was to be given a seat on the league council when Germany was admitted to the league."

Third—"The public agreements reached at Locarno, and proclaimed to the world as ushering in the dawn of a new peace era, were bought by secret understandings, including the secret understanding with Poland."

Fourth—"Brazil acted as the agent of other powers, and not of her own initiative in breaking up the Geneva conference."

Fifth—"There can be no disarmament conference promising success until the Locarno pacts are effective."

Sixth—"Italy is openly opposed to the whole Locarno arrangement."

Does Not Want Strife.

After stating that neither he nor
the so-called irreconcilable group
in the Senate desired to see turmoil
and hatred and strife continue in Europe, Mr. Borah said:

"I suspect that Mr. Houghton gave the facts to the President and to the Secretary of State. The old regime is pretty well established in European affairs. There can be no doubt as to the seriousness of the situation."

"I firmly believe that the President and the United States are entitled to know the facts and I wish the whole American people might have them with no curtailment." Senator Glass, league champion, wanted to know what right America had to the facts when we claimed we were not interested in the league, and what right Mr. Houghton had to offer suggestions. In reply, Senator Borah said that Mr.
Houghton had been called to Washington to discuss the prospective disarmament conference, and this conference was necessarily linked with the present European political developments. Mr. Glass said disarmament could be discussed without approval.

HOUSE JUGGLES, DEFERS WOMEN'S JURY MEASURE

Longworth Once Saved From Deciding Question by Call for Tellers.

FLAPPERS ARE DEFENDED

Faced by the prospect of a record vote, the House yesterday reversed itself, after twice voting to kill the Lineberger bill to permit women to serve on juries in the District, and left the measure on the calendar.

The three women members of the House voted without regard to party lines. Representatives Kahn, of California, and Norton, of New Jersey, voting for the bill, and Representative Rogers, of Massachusetts, voting against it. Once in the parliamentary juggling of the measure, Speaker Longworth was faced by the question of casting the deciding vote.

While he hesitated in indecision, members kept calling to him good-naturedly to vote. Representative Underhill, of Massachusetts, relieved his embarrassment by calling for a teller vote.

On this vote, the House voted 70 to 63 in favor of Mr. Underhill's motion to strike out the enacting clause. Then on a roll call vote, it voted against the motion 188 to 122. The effect was to leave the bill on the calendar until next District day, two weeks hence.

Representative Blanton, of Texas, sought to amend the measure so that it would not apply to mothers who Mr. Blanton declared, would be taken from the homes and locked in jury rooms sometimes for weeks. It was pointed out that his amendment would leave the bill applicable only to "flappers," and Mr. Blanton said they were an integral part of our modern life," he said.

"The gentleman is entitled to his own opinion," retorted Mr. Blanton.
Mr. Underhill declared it to be a "sad commentary on our present day chivalry when, because we have given women the vote and equal property rights, we should, in revenge, saddle upon them the onerous burden of jury service."

Only a few "theorists" in Washington wanted the bill, he declared, asserting that "we should have some consideration for the great body of intelligent, home-loving women."

Representative Boylan, of New York, sought to defend the "Nap-per," asking Mr. Blanton why he placed so much opprobrium on her.
"She is an integral part of our modern life," he said.

JOHNSON WITNESS
DRUGGED, HE SAYS

Man Missing at Hearing on Senate Seat Contest
Is in Court.

Minneapolis, Minn., March 22
(By A. P.).—Gale Plagman, whose testimony former United States Senator Magnus Johnson claims will help him in his contest for the senatorial seat of Thomas D.
Schall, told a police court judge today that he had been drugged and placed in a "cure" institute.

Arraigned on a charge of failing to contribute to the support of his family, Plagman made a part payment and was released on probation and was forbidden to leave the State.

His court statement followed the telegraphic plea of Donald Hughes, Johnson's counsel, sent last night to Senator Charles Deneen in Washington, asking delay in final action on the efforts of the former Farmer-Labor senator to unseat Senator Schall.

Plagman was sought as a witness during the hearings in Washington, but could not be found. Hughes telegraphed that he had found Plagman, and told of the alleged drugging.

GEORGETOWN GROUP ASKS PARKING LIMIT ON 2 OF ITS STREETS

Two-Hour Restriction on M Street and Wisconsin Avenue Urged.

REGULATION OF TRUCK TRAFFIC SOUGHT ALSO

Citizens' Body to Appeal to Congress For New Chain Bridge.

The Georgetown Citizens association will request Traffic Director Eldridge to restrict parking on the main business streets of Georgetown to two hours during the business periods of the day, under a committee report adopted at a meeting in Potomac Bank hall, Wisconsin avenue and M streets, last night.

The report, submitted by G. W. Offutt, asked that two-hour parking be established on M street from Pennsylvania avenue to Thirty-sixth street, and on Wisconsin avenue from P street to Grace street, during the hours from 8 o'clock in the morning to 6 o'clock in the evening on week days, and on Saturday from 8 o'clock until 10 o'clock at night.

The association will also ask for regulation of truck traffic. Mr. Offutt declared that heavy trucks had jarred dishes from shelves in homes and that the "excessive vibration" had caused considerable damage generally. The report requested that Wisconsin avenue and M street be made adaptable for this heavy truck traffic and that the movement of the trucks be confined to these arteries except when necessary to load or unload on some other street.

The association voted to appoint a special committee to urge before Congress the passage of effective legislation for the building of a new Chain bridge. It was declared that the bridge will have to be discontinued in a year or so because of the damage done to the bridge by the trucks.

Maj. Carey Brown, assistant to the director of public buildings and public parks, spoke. Isaac B. Nordlinger presided.

Howard Park Citizens Told of Zoning Plans

Lieut. Col. J. Franklin Bell, district commissioner, was the principal speaker at a special meeting of the Howard Park Citizens association in the auditorium of the Church of Our Redeemer last night. He discussed the zoning system, including a proposed double-A restricted area of detached houses and yards only, and a modification of the A restricted area to include triple as well as semidetached houses. He also spoke of development of the city under the National Capital park planning commission.

He suggested neighborhood contests in connection with spring clean-up campaigns, and deplored the existence of 3,000 homes within the District, principally beyond Anacostia river, without sewer service. In reply to questions relative to extension of Vermont avenue to Soldiers Home, he stated that present prospects of such development, because of expense, were not good.

Dying in Emergency hospital as the result of an attempt to end his life by swallowing poison, William Waple, 46 years old, a roomer at 808 Fifth street northwest, yesterday told Detective Charles Warfield, of the central office, that he had attempted to reconcile himself with his wife, who lives at 1622 Gale street northeast, led him to take poison.

Waple at first told police that despondency over ill health was the cause of his attempt. He met his wife, he told Warfield, Saturday night and attempted reconciliation. All Sunday he brooded over her refusal, he said, and in the evening he borrowed a quarter from his daughter, Mrs. Rosalie Rogers, purchased the poison and returned to his room, where he was found semi-conscious.

BILL AUTHORIZING JAIL WING PASSED BY HOUSE

Measure Does Not Specify Sum for Project; Commissioners Ask $300,000.

OTHER BILLS APPROVED

The House yesterday without record vote passed a bill authorizing the construction of an additional wing to the District jail. It also passed measures, by Representative Dickstein, of New York, seeking to prevent deception in the sale of kosher meat here, and by Representative Zihlman, to permit the erection of a roof garden of the new National Press club, now building.

The measure for the additional jail wing, sponsored by Representative McLeod, of Michigan, did not carry any specific amount for the project. This was purposely left out by the committee because of the uncertainty as to the cost. It is designed to relieve crowded conditions at the jail.

The District commissioners yesterday forwarded to the House District committee a report recommending enactment of legislation for the building of a new Chain bridge. It was declared that the bridge will have to be discontinued in a year or so because of the damage done to the bridge by the trucks.

MRS. WHITTEMORE IDENTIFIED AS GIRL WHO ROBBED STORE

Baltimore Woman Says Convict's Wife Fled With $350 in 1924.

GANG'S MEMBERS LINKED WITH SEVEN HOMICIDES

Total Loot Taken in 3 States, Say Police, Was Nearly $1,000,000.

Baltimore, Md., March 22 (By A. P.).—Mrs. Richard Reese Whittemore, wife of the Baltimore escaped convict, under arrest in New York for a series of robberies, today was identified from newspaper photographs as a woman bandit who robbed a confectionery store in Baltimore in March, 1924.

Mrs. John Ortman, who at the time of the robbery was Miss Alice Hahn and cashier in the store, told detectives she recognized a published photograph of Mrs. Whittemore as the woman who robbed the Ortman confectionery in broad daylight. Detectives said Miss Hahn at the time had failed to identify any of the gallery photographs shown her, but that Mrs. Whittemore's likeness was not among the pictures examined by the cashier.

Detectives were assigned in an attempt to substantiate the identification. The woman robbed the store alone, with a male accomplice waiting outside. She covered a roomful of customers with a revolver and took $350 from the cash register. She and the man padlocked the door on the outside when they left.

Loot Nearly $1,000,000.

New York, March 22 (By A. P.).—Estimates of the total loot in jewel robberies committed by the gang of seven men headed by Richard Reese Whittemore today amounted to a total of nearly $1,000,000 as police continue to accumulate information obtained through confessions of members of the gang. Police Inspector Coughlin said he believed the band had obtained $750,000 in loot in this city alone last year.

Robberies also are alleged to have been committed by members of the gang in Baltimore, Buffalo and New Jersey cities. Police also were following up evidence tending to link the gang with seven murders committed in different cities in a little more than a year.

Five of the prisoners, including Whittemore, have made confessions, Mr. Coughlin said. These confessions were among the evidence presented to the grand jury today.

Confesses Killing Guard.

District Attorney Edgett, of Baltimore, who questioned Whittemore today, said the prisoner confessed that he killed a Maryland penitentiary guard in escaping from the prison last year. Mr. Edgett came here to take steps for Whittemore's extradition to Maryland.

Four grand jury indictments charging six of the prisoners, including Whittemore and his wife, Margaret, with first degree robbery were returned this afternoon.

Murders Laid to Gang.

Among the murders laid to the gang's door are those of two former members of the gang—Simon L. Tilden, whose body was found in Trinity churchyard in December, "Chicago Tommy" Langrella, found dead in New Jersey. The seventh supposed victim is former Police Captain Henry Helwig, who disappeared after a band recently held up two jewelers on Fifth avenue and escaped with $150,000 of uncut diamonds.

Helwig, then employed as a private detective, fired on the robbers, who are believed to have killed him to prevent recognition by him.

District Attorney Banton today said that the Baltimore requisition on Whittemore probably would be honored, although he said his consent would not be given until thorough investigation has been made of the gang's activities here.

CANDIDATES FOR NAVY "CRIBBED," IT IS ALLEGED

Annapolis Officials Hint Questions "Leaked" at Salisbury Examination.

4 ARE UNDER SUSPICION

Special to The Washington Post. Annapolis, Md., March 22.—That "cribbing," or some other irregularities were perpetrated by at least four candidates for admission to the Naval Academy as midshipmen at the mental examinations conducted at Salisbury, Md., on February 17, was admitted by authorities of the institution today, in answer to reports circulated in the last several days.

The alleged "cribbing" was detected when the papers of the candidates were being marked by instructors at the academy, as customary. Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton, superintendent, announced. No names have been mentioned in connection with the case.

The local officials have referred the matter to the United States civil service commission under whose supervision entrance examinations are conducted.

Answers given to the questions in the papers of a quieted candidate were strikingly similar, it is said, to academy officials became suspicious and withheld announcement of the results from the civil service board. Annapolis authorities hint strongly that there was collusion, even to the possibility that an advance copy of the questions "got loose." So far there is no suspicion as to where the "leak" occurred.

Since the mental examinations were placed under the civil service officials some years ago, the method of procedure has been as follows: Questions in each subject are prepared by officials of the academy, are sealed and sent to the civil service bureau at Washington from whose headquarters, copies are distributed to the civil service bureaus throughout the country.

Most of the candidates, as a rule, present themselves for the tests, at the station nearest their home. Hence, those examined at Salisbury, in the absence of names, are believed to have been youths designated for appointment from the Eastern Shore or other parts of Maryland or nearby sections.

If the inquiry develops there has been "gouging" or other irregularities, the candidates would be barred from admission and deprived of their appointments, it is said.

Since the mental examinations yesterday it was said no report of the alleged cribbing had reached Secretary of the Navy Wilbur or the Naval Academy division, bureau of navigation. The latter office, however, said it expects a report probably today.

VICE IN WASHINGTON LAID TO WARRANTS

Without Them Some Arrests Can Not Be Made, Mrs. Van Winkle Says.

Washington is "wide open" to vice and crime because the police cannot prosecute a sex offense case in court without first having obtained a warrant, Mrs. Mina Van Winkle, secretary of the women's bureau, declared last night before the National Capital Citizens association, meeting in the United Brethren church.

Policemen are not only poorly educated, but are often rough shod in their tactics, Mrs. Van Winkle charged. This is not so, however, of the police women, whose high standards of education enable them to obtain confessions from prisoners after the police fail, she stated.

Pretty young dappers will continue to be hired by the women's bureau, Mrs. Van Winkle declared. "We are too large and then we are after would see us coming and recognize us," she said in justifying her policy of employing young girls to apprehend a "certain class of men." The association adopted a resolution protesting against the use of 15 new one-man cars recently ordered by the Washington Railway & Electric Co.

SHERMAN PARK CAMPAIGN OPENED IN POST RADIO HOUR

Col. R. N. Harper Declares Proposal Is Worth While to Washington.

MRS. RUST ASKS HELP FOR WAKEFIELD PROJECT

Gilda Gray, Boys Band, Juanita Froelich and Others Contribute to Program.

With California and Colorado getting millions of dollars from tourists visiting their parks, why shouldn't Washington get a few millions from the same source through the projected Shenandoah national park.

Such was the argument of Col. Robert N. Harper, chairman of the Washington committee for the Shenandoah park movement, who opened the local campaign from Station WCAP during The Washington Post's radio hour last night.

Speaking of the movement to establish this 400,000-acre park, the Blue Ridge mountains, Col. Harper said that the District should join with the people of Virginia in obtaining the realization of this worthy idea which will result in the advancement of the National Capital in many ways.

Asks Memorial Support.

Support for the work of the Wakefield National Memorial association to restore the birthplace of George Washington at Wakefield, Va., was urged by Mrs. Harry Lee Rust, president of the association. It has acquired 70 acres including this historic estate; seeks to restore the Washington mansion destroyed by fire in 1779, and preserve this national shrine from extinction through the steady encroachment of fishing and hunting clubs, road houses and pleasure resorts. Funds will be raised by selling land acquired at a dollar a square foot.

The growing popularity of oil as a fuel in Washington was described by Charles Flaudreau, of the Ray Engineering Co., in a talk on "Oil Burning." Three million seven hundred thousand gallons of oil were burned in Washington in 1924, and 8,300,000 gallons in 1925. These figures did not include all burned in large buildings, such as office buildings and churches. Oil, he asserted, furnished better heat at less cost than any other fuel and presented less of a fire hazard because it does not cause sparks.

Yip Yip Yankers Aid

The Washington Boys Independent band, Gilda Gray, Juanita Froelich and the Yip Yip Yankers furnished the musical part of the program. The boys' band, led by Miss Ethel K. Brown, its drum major, played the "Washington Post March" in front of The Post building, then marched to the broadcasting station, where it gave a fine concert, directed by C. J. Brown and J. L. Kidwell, and featuring Clinton J. Brown, 11-year-old saxophonist.

Miss Gray, who was a good singer before she became an excellent dancer, sang "Ty-tee," one of her early song hits, and Miss Froelich, who is a good singer and dancer, sang "You and I" and "Firefly" selections. Miss Elisabeth E. Poe gave the children an interesting talk about Arlington National cemetery, and John Jagget, producer, delightful raconteur of Washington's past, told about early fishing in the District. The advantages of shopping in the Capital were ably presented by Eleanor Marie Moran, style show producer.

OFFICIALS TO FIGHT FOR EMPLOYEES' LEAVE

Will Ask Senate Committee to Change House District Supply Bill.

Efforts will be made before the Senate appropriations committee today by District officials to have the barrier placed in the District 1927 budget in purchasing of sites removed and also to have taken out a clause inserted in the House to deprive 2,000 per diem District employees of their 15 days annual leave with pay.

These and other amendments in the appropriations bill by the House were discussed yesterday at a meeting of the heads of the engineering department of the District in the office of the engineer commissioner. It was said that without the fifteen days of leave with pay yearly allowed those who have worked ten months or more, difficulty of maintaining the personnel on important public work will be increased.

CHAMBERLAIN TODAY WILL FACE ATTACK ON ACTS AT GENEVA

Lloyd George and Ramsey MacDonald to Conduct the Opposition.

BERLIN MAY NOT ENTER, STRESEMANN DECLARES

Right to Withdraw Request to Join League Reserved, Reichstag Is Told.

London, March 22 (A. P.).—Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary for foreign affairs, did not attend tonight's cabinet council, which discussed the procedure for the debate in the house of commons tomorrow on the Geneva conference. It had been decided to allow the opposition to lead the attack on the foreign secretary, instead of insisting, as their opposition leaders hope, that Sir Austen would first make his explanation before the house.

Former Premier Lloyd George will probably open the debate, and he will be under the disadvantage of not knowing what line of defense Sir Austen will adopt. Ramsey MacDonald, former labor premier, will follow, and then the foreign secretary will make his statement on the proceedings of the league assembly at Geneva. The prime minister, Stanley Baldwin, will wind up the discussion in support of his foreign secretary and there is little doubt that he will take a line calculated to draw nearly the full strength of his party into the division lobby.

Sir Austen passed the week end in the country preparing an outline of his speech.

Germany May Not Enter

Berlin, March 22 (A. P.).—Foreign Minister Stresemann told the reichstag today that Germany reserves the right to withdraw her application for entry into the league.

of nations in the event the decision of the new commission regarding reconstruction of the council does not correspond with Germany's expectations.

The league has been plunged into a grave crisis by the breakdown of the negotiations for Germany's election, the foreign minister said. He frankly criticized the obstructionist tactics employed by certain powers at Geneva in keeping Germany from the council seat promised her at Locarno.

"The outcome of the negotiations must be deeply deplored, because the chief mourner after all is the league itself," he said.

Universality Favored.

The adherents of the league, the foreign minister said, should have subordinated all other considerations to the formalities of receiving Germany into membership. By this attitude the principle underlying the league—that of universality—would have been considerably strengthened, but the special interests of certain states were exploited in such a powerful and brutal manner that a situation was provoked which the league for the time being was unable to master.

Replying to a reproach because the German delegation had not left Geneva the moment the council membership question no longer conformed with the promises received by Germany at Locarno, Dr. Stresemann said:

"Such a departure unquestionably would have called forth cheap laurels for the German delegation at home, but at the expense of the peace of the eyes of the rest of the world. We could not afford to offend the League of Nations because the attitude of several powers in it seemed incorrect. As it was, we left Geneva without a single power there justified in blaming us for the unsatisfactory result of the conference."

Gives Opinion of World.

"Before and during the war we frequently made the mistake of underestimating the importance of public sentiment as a world factor. If that was a mistake at the zenith of our power, it would have represented nothing less than a crime in our present situation."

Germany, he added, must continue to strive to enter the league on equal terms with the world powers, even if the league be nothing but a diplomatic instrument for furthering the special interests of nations.

Count Westarp, the nationalist leader, who followed the foreign minister, denounced the policy of the government, declaring the events in Geneva clearly demonstrated that the League of Nations was not a medium for furthering peaceful cooperation among nations.

He faulted the statement of Luther's statement that Brazil's entry into the conflict for council seats was an inevitable occurrence.

"It was the promise of a council of nations which induced the other nations to enter Brazil, to enter the conflict," he said.

"TWO-GUN" WOMAN, ONCE A DRY RAIDER, IS IN FIGHT FOR LIFE

Daisy Simpson, Who Shot Self While a Prisoner, Has Chance to Recover.

WAS BEST "SHADOWER" IN FRISCO'S VICE WORK

"Nemesis of Underworld" Is Held in El Paso, Texas, on Narcotic Charge.

El Paso, Tex., March 22 (By A. P.).—Unless complications set in, Daisy Simpson, pretty former prohibition sleuth, who shot herself while held in the county jail Saturday following her arrest on a narcotic charge, probably will live. In a local hospital, where she is fighting for life following an operation to remove a bullet from her abdomen, it was said that she was slightly improved tonight.

Authorities have been unable to find any trace of a man known in San Francisco as Bert Sinkins, to whom Daisy addressed a number of telegrams begging for aid.

Captured Men Alone.

San Francisco, Calif., March 22 (By A. P.).—One day, a few years back, a nice little old lady, wearing a bit of a bonnet that seemed to accentuate the wrinkled sweetness of her face, and a worn plaid shawl, stepped out of the prohibition enforcement officers' quarters in the customs house and in a moment was lost to sight in the throng on the street.

An hour later a "two-gun" woman, with a brace of handcuffs dangling from her waist, raised a particular bootleg establishment on lower Folsom street, backed five men up against the wall, despite their snarling threats, and held them there while she rang for the police.

The women were one and the same.

Was City's Best Shadower.

Daisy Simpson, loyal worker for the police, the best shadower that the city has ever known, terror to liquor sellers and the nemesis of the underworld.

The tribute is from the lips of Capt. of Police Charles Goff, who employed her both as a member of the morals squad and as a general enforcement officer.

The variety of her talents was infinite. Armed with the knowledge she gained while a narcotic addict, in San Francisco dives, and while beating her way back to respectability again, and with an iron nerve, she would assume, now and then, again the droop and the twitch of the "eater," go down into the dens that she had forsaken and clean them out with a gun in the folds of her dress and the inevitable "bracelets," which she always carried.

Worked in Many Cities.

Weeks later she would appear in Chicago, Milwaukee, Baltimore or New York, for she worked the country over for the government, dressed in a stunning Gainsborough hat and Deauville gown, and could drink and sing in high level at a supper club or some other night resort that knows only the royal spenders and royal drinkers.

A few hours later there would be a line-up of silken-gowned women and top-hatted and fur-coated men at the nearest police station. Prior to 1915, Capt. Goff said, Daisy Simpson was an underworld figure whose weakness for narcotics did not take the keen edge off her clever mind. Then she joined the police morals squad under Goff in 1917. Her chief duty was to trap those who sold liquor to soldiers.

Later she joined Goff, while he was a Federal prohibition enforcement director here. William Anderson, then Federal enforcement officer in Los Angeles, and later in Chicago, started her on a nationwide liquor cleanup campaign.

She was divorced 14 years ago from Bert Sinkins, a custom employe and later became a narcotic addict through an unfortunate love affair. She fought off the drug craving and then enlisted as a peace officer so that she might strike back at the underworld that had trapped her.

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 22 (By A. P.).—Edward Fluke, 30, whose Indian stoicism caused him to serve five years in the Oklahoma penitentiary for a murder he did not commit, was pardoned today by Gov. M. E. Trap.

Fluke was charged with the murder of Vinie of Harold Fry, a mail carrier, whose charred body was found in a partly burned haystack, in 1921. Fluke refused to talk. He played the part of a silent observer at his trial, declined to testify, was convicted and given a life sentence.

Two years later Fluke made a statement accusing Levi Jenkins, Indian youth, of the killing. His own innocence was proved.

LEWIS, 73, SOUGHT GIRL, NOW DEAD, AS BRIDE, HE TESTIFIES

Aged Former State Senator of Utah Weeps on Stand at Murder Trial.

ALLEGED SLAYER BLIND FROM SUICIDE ATTEMPT

Hearing Continued Because of Effort to Dispute the Testimony of Prisoner.

New York, March 22 (By A. P.). The trial of Harry W. Cowan for the alleged murder of his fiancée, Edith M. Burton, was adjourned today by County Judge Taylor until tomorrow, when he will rule on the admissibility of certain evidence by former State Senator A. B. Lewis, of Utah.

This testimony was outlined as being to the effect that Miss Burton talked to Lewis on the telephone at 8:15 on the night of the murder on December 28 last. Cowan had testified previously that he was with her from 6:15 until 10 p. m.

Mr. Lewis today was questioned closely regarding his relations with Miss Burton, whom he said he intended to marry when his divorce was granted. He said he had a son 42 years old, and four other children. His divorce still is pending.

Cowan is alleged to have shot and killed Miss Burton in her mother's apartment. He said she killed herself in a suicide pact. He was blind as the result of his suicide attempt.

Asked Her to Marry Him.

Lewis was the principal witness today. Between tears the 73-year-old man told of his friendship for the 28-year-old stenographer.

Lewis said that his acquaintance with Miss Burton began over two years ago in a purely business way and that his regard for her developed until the night before her death he asked her to marry him.

"I received a telegram from my lawyer in Los Angeles stating that he had begun divorce proceedings," said Senator Lewis. "I showed it to Edith and told her that if the case was successful and I got my freedom and she still was willing, I would give her my protection."

The tribute is from the lips of Capt. of Police Charles Goff, who employed her both as a member of the morals squad and as a general enforcement officer.

The variety of her talents was infinite. President Consoles Ruler of Denmark

Copenhagen, March 22 (By A. P.).—The first message of condolence on the death of Dowager Queen Louise to be received by King Christian from the head of any State was that from President Coolidge, who suffered a similar loss last week in the death of his father. Among the many sympathetic messages which have been received was one from the former Kaiser of Germany.

Several farewell entertainments in honor of John D. Prince, son of the New York hotel magnate, were canceled because of the death of Louise, who succumbed Saturday to a heart attack.

STOKES, JR., IS RESCUED FROM WRECKED YACHT

Calliope Driven Ashore After 3-Day Battle With Gale Off Florida.

RUDDER AND SAILS LOST

Titusville, Fla., March 22 (By A. P.).—The yacht Calliope, a 55-foot boat, owned by W. E. D. Stokes, Jr., son of the New York hotel magnate, was beached on Merritt island, 4 miles north of Cape Canaveral, Fla., on the morning of March 15, after a 3-day battle with the sea, coast guardsmen announced here tonight. Stokes and his crew of two men were landed safely and brought here, and Stokes left for Washington immediately.

The following is a detailed sketch of the boat's experiences, as related by the leewardmen:

"The Calliope, with Stokes and two other men aboard, started north from Miami March 11, and the same night was struck by a terrific gale. The foresail was carried away, and the sheet blocks were wrecked by great seas breaking over the boat.

"On the twelfth, the sails were repaired and the journey resumed. When the boat was 160 miles off shore, a steamer hailed the small craft and finally got a line around her foremast. The wind increased to gale proportions and the seas became monstrous.

The steamer attempted to anchor and then the tow line broke. The Calliope lay to all night. The pumps were worked continuously, the water coming up to the saloon floor every two hours. On the morning of the 14th land was sighted. Off Mosquito inlet the Calliope signaled for help, but received no response.

"The boat anchored a mile or so off shore and four miles north of the cape on the 14th, practically out of gas with the motor beginning to cough.

"The next morning the improvised sails were torn beyond repair and the motor refused to run. The anchors were raised and the boat drifted toward the shore. The vessel refused to answer the helm. The rudder was gone. The boat touched shore and an hour later was buffeted into a complete wreck."

Tam, a man of 52, came to England from China twenty years ago. He became naturalized, married a Welsh girl and prospered in business. He was rich, powerful and mysterious. His influence reached many countries. He befriended thousands of his needy countrymen.

Chinese in all parts of Europe and America subscribed a huge fund for his defense. Sir Edward Marshall Hall, one of the distinguished lawyers of England, defended him, receiving what was declared to have been a record fee. The defense pleaded that Lock Ah-Tam's mind was unbalanced by business worries. He was convicted, however.

PROHIBITION ISSUE HEARINGS TO START IN SENATE APRIL 5

Judiciary Committee Approves
Two Weeks Airing by Wets and Drys.

SIX DAYS WILL BE GIVEN
EACH SIDE FOR ITS CASE

Modification and Various Beer Bills Will Be Considered.

(By the Associated Press.)

The prohibition issue, which has agitated both houses of Congress at this session as has no other question, is to be given a public airing before a Senate committee during the two weeks beginning April 5.

This was determined upon yesterday by the Senate Judiciary committee, which approved with but a single dissenting vote the program recommended by its subcommittee of five for hearings on the pending measures for modification of the dry laws.

Senator Means (Republican, Colorado), will have charge of the hearings and will attempt to hold both the wets and drys strictly to the subject of the bills at issue. Each side will have six days for the presentation of its case with the wets taking the stand first.

Besides approving the program for the hearings, the committee endorsed the action of the subcommittee in indefinitely postponing consideration of a bill by Senator Edwards (Democrat), New Jersey, for repeal of the Volstead act. This measure was pigeonholed, it was explained, because its passage would leave the government without authority to enforce the dry constitutional amendment.

To Consider Bruce Bill.

The first measure that will be considered will be that by Senator Bruce (Democrat), Maryland, proposing to change the eighteenth amendment so that those States and communities which were wet when the dry law went into effect again would be wet, but would have to depend upon the Federal government for their limited supplies of intoxicants.

Then the wets and the Edzes measure to repeal the restrictions on prescription whisky will have their say. There are three beer bills proposing a 4 per cent, 2.75 per cent, and beer non-taxation in fact. Senator Edwards (Democrat), New Jersey, is author of the first, and Senator Edge (Republican), New Jersey, sponsors the other two.

Wet leaders have no hope that the committee will report any of the bills favorably. They asked for the hearings, they explain, so Congress can elicit officially the opinions of enforcement officers, educators, ministers and others as to how the dry laws should be amended so as to make their enforcement less difficult.

Walsh Opposed.

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, who voted against the hearings, based his opposition on the ground that they were requested merely for the purpose of spreading wet propaganda.

Prohibition was touched upon briefly today in the Senate, Senator Bruce interrupting a speech by the European situation to say he wanted to bring the Senate back to a consideration of a "serious domestic situation." He then read a newspaper poll showing 2,727,679 votes against prohibition to 529,495 in favor of it.

Buckner's Suggestion Assailed by Wheeler

(By the Associated Press.)

The suggestion of District Attorney Buckner, of New York, that the Volstead act be modified to allow a State to determine the legal alcoholic content of beverages within its boundaries was declared by Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Antislavery league as looking "like another alibi for non-enforcement of the prohibitory law in New York."

"To propose that the Federal enforcement act provide for a lack of uniformity of operation when the Constitution requires uniformity is a novel proposition coming from a United States district attorney," said Mr. Wheeler.

Military committee adopted a report on its recommendations approving War Department bill authorizing expenditure of $7,020,000 at military posts out of funds derived from sale of surplus real estate.

Ohio Representative Rebuked by Mellon

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon yesterday in a letter to Representative Martin L. Davey, of Ohio, declared that the representative should ascertain the facts about the policy of the Treasury in trying to keep 200 employees slated to go before making wild statements to the newspapers that he (Mr. Mellon) was trying to keep 200 useless employees on the government's pay roll.

"The policy which I have directed to be followed," Mr. Mellon stated, "is that in filling vacancies in essential positions preference should be given to employees whose positions are to be abolished." This policy, Mr. Mellon stated, is one of fairness and justice to the employees and of economic advantage to the government.

Senators' Eyes Bulge At Daugherty's Name

(By the Associated Press.)

The eyes of senators bulged yesterday when it was noted about that Harry Daugherty had been appointed by the President to be assistant solicitor of the Treasury Department.

A hurried scanning of the nominations sent to the Capitol by President Coolidge disclosed, however, that it was Harry K. Daugherty, of Pennsylvania, who had been selected, and not Harry M., the former Attorney General, who is scarcely on speaking terms with a lot of the Senate membership.

AGENTS TO STUDY LATEST INSURANCE CODE BILL FRIDAY

Fenning, Representative Here for 3 Concerns, Asked

Baldwin Says New Measure Omits Supervision of Fire Rates.

Following objections by representatives of the National Board of Fire Underwriters and other insurance interests, the bill for a new insurance code for the District, now pending in Congress, has been rewritten and will be submitted anew to a meeting of insurance men for their criticism Friday at 10:30 a. m. in the office of Thomas M. Baldwin, Jr., District superintendent of insurance.

Baldwin wrote the original draft of the bill, it contained a section giving him and his aids authority to investigate fire insurance rates and order them readjusted. The fire underwriters started a fight on the bill, Mr. Baldwin says.

On motion of Commissioner Frederick A. Fenning, the commission, who approved Baldwin's bill and submitted it to Congress asking its passage, requested a delay in hearings recently until they could make further investigation.

Departments Traded.

Commissioner Rudolph had exercised administrative jurisdiction over the insurance department for a number of years.

Fenning had charge of playgrounds, six months ago the two commissioners traded departments, putting Fenning in charge of insurance matters for the District supervision.

It was recently disclosed that he is a licensed agent for three insurance companies.

A conference on insurance men followed the commissioners' request for delay. Mr. Fenning reported that their objections to the bill were that it jumbled regulations of various types of insurance concerns together in a tangled mass and that a request had been made that the bill be rewritten to separate into respective sections the rules to govern various types of companies. This, he said, would simplify and shorten the bill.

Baldwin Finds Omissions.

Superintendent Baldwin, however, gives another account of the matter. He says the revamped bill omits all references to supervision of rates of fire insurance, which he described of vital importance. It also omits all reference to mutual companies and to companies doing a bonding business.

Baldwin says the original measure is still pending before Congress. Following his conference with the insurance men he will re-write the bill to the satisfaction of the commissioners. It is expected that they then will consider the question of submitting it to Congress. If they do, Baldwin says, choice between the original and rewritten measures, or any combination of the two, or an entirely new measure, will be before the District committee of Congress.

COMBINE TO EXPLOIT INSANE IS ALLEGED

missioners' the "assassination of characters in the House," Mr. Hammer, and Representative Rankin, of Mississippi, and Representative Green, of Florida, entered into the debate.

The veterans' bureau has been unable to find sixteen of Mr. Fenning's guardianship cases, declared Mr. Blanton, adding:

"They are probably in some other insane asylum outside of Washington."

"Dr. William A. White and Commissioner Fenning are close personal friends," Mr. Blanton continued. "They have been working together for years. Dr. J. Ramsey Nevitt, coroner of Washington, is a brother-in-law of Commissioner Fenning, they having married sisters. So when patients die in St. Elizabeth's, Dr. White doesn't expect any report that may be made by the coroner to reflect upon him."

In Department of Justice.

"Up to November 4, 1925, Commissioner Fenning's brother, Carl Fenning, was employed in the Patent Office at $5,600 a year, but resigned on November 4, 1925 to accept a position as an assistant to the Attorney General of the United States." Although the law prescribes that Carl Fenning shall not receive more than $8,500 a year," said Mr. Blanton, "he is receiving $775 a month."

"And he is in a key position in that particular department, where when any suits are filed against the United States respecting the veterans' bureau, he can report to the commission."

"Why it is common knowledge," exclaimed the Texan, "that among the legal fraternity of Washington, Commissioner Fenning is known as the 'lunacy lawyer.' He has been reaping a golden harvest from these poor unfortunate who are shut up in St. Elizabeth's. Whenever it has developed that a 'new arrival' has an estate, or is to receive monthly compensation from the government, the information is tipped out to Attorney Frederick A. Fenning, and steps are immediately taken for his appointment as guardian."

Monopoly in Undertaking.

Referring to what he described as the "undertakers' scandal," Mr. Blanton said that until recently the Gawler establishment "enjoyed an exclusive monopoly on all undertaking business at St. Elizabeth's. Finally the undertakers of Washington got tired of it and raised a riot, since which time Gawler gets now only the 'greater part of it.'"

Mr. Blanton renewed his attack on William Wolfe Smith, chief counsel of the veterans bureau, who he declared, "knows no law, who has no standing, who is known all over Washington as 'Poker Bill Smith,' and who should be taken out of such position."

Bill Lets Richmond
Blues Visit Europe

(By the Associated Press.)

Three-act national guard organization of this country would be authorized to visit Great Britain, France and Belgium next month under a bill introduced yesterday by Senator Swanson (Democrat), of Virginia.

These organizations are the famous Richmond (Va.) light infantry Blues, the First and Second companies of the governor's foot guard, Hartford, Conn., and the Putnam phalanx, of the same city.

SENATE BODY APPROVES
2 BATHING BEACHES HERE

Zihlman Urges Early Action to Provide Pools For Coming Summer.

TAXI PRIVILEGES REMAIN

The bill, already passed by the House, authorizing the construction of two artificial bathing beaches here, was favorably reported by the Senate District committee yesterday.

At the same time the committee, largely at the instance of Mr. Zihlman, of the traffic bureau, provided for the issuance of three-year drivers' permits July 1 at $3 each and slightly broadens the traffic director's power, was held in committee for further consideration.

Chairman Zihlman of the House District committee, who sponsored the bathing beach measure, appeared before the Senate committee to urge action upon it. Early passage is important, he told the committee, in order that the money may be made available and work started upon the beaches, if they are to be available for the coming summer. He described the situation here last year without the beaches.

Commissioner Fenning appeared with E. F. Colladay and other representatives of the hotel owners in connection with the traffic bill. Mr. Colladay told the committee that the hotel owners were unanimously opposed to the concession provision, which was sponsored in the House by Representative Blanton, of Texas. Mr. Fenning said the commissioners "have no brief for it."

SON OF JUSTICE ROBB HELD IN DISTURBANCE

New Haven, Conn., March 22 (By A. P.).—Charles Beecher Warren, Jr., son of Director Charles B. Warren of Sheffield Scientific school at Yale; Richard C. Miller of Canal Zone, and Roger Robb of Washington, all underclassmen at Yale, were held today for a city court hearing tomorrow on the charge of disturbing a theatrical performance.

The officer who entered the complaint asserts that Saturday the students, from the gallery of the theater, showered girls in a dancing act with chocolate almonds.

Roger Robb is a son of Charles H. Robb, associate justice of the District Court of Appeals. His home is in the Rochambeau apartments.

CITY HELD NOT READY ON COMMUNITY CHEST

It has been in operation in this country. Its chief disadvantage, he said, is that it is likely to sacrifice service for system. The plan, he said, will never be successful unless the various charitable organizations keep alive their constituencies.

Walter S. Ufford, general secretary of the Associated Charities, said the thought of a community chest is an alluring one and that it would eliminate waste and duplication.

Miss Louise O. Beall, director of family service for the Associated Charities, declared that illness was the reason for 737 families, nearly 70 per cent applying to the organization for assistance in the last six months.

Coleman Jennings, chairman of the board of managers, presided and announced that a change in the name of the organization was being considered. It had been proposed, he said, that the organization be called the "Family Societies." The word charities, he said, was not liked by many.

Commissioner Cuno H. Rudolph was re-elected president; Corcoran Thom, vice president; John Joy Edson, treasurer; and Fred M. Berthrong, assistant treasurer. The following were elected members of the board of managers for the three-year term expiring in 1929: Mrs. Anne Archibald, Col. Archibald Hopkins, Coleman Jennings, Dr. George M. Keher, Cleveland Perkins, Duncan Phillips, Ord Preston, Cuno H. Rudolph, Miss Florence P. Spofford, Dr. Anson Phelps Stokes, Winslow B. Van Devanter and Henry White.

BUSINESS GAIN IS SEEN

Income tax receipts received for the first quarter, up to midnight March 20, have totaled $380,000,000, according to figures made public yesterday by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

An additional $40,000,000 is expected to be received from the 12 Federal Reserve Bank districts by the end of the month, it was announced. This figure exceeds by $20,000,000 the estimate made by Treasury officials on the amount expected to be received from first quarterly receipts.

Despite the fact that a considerable reduction in tax rates was made under the new revenue law, the last fiscal year receipts for the first quarter totaled but $441,000,000 as compared with the $420,000,000 expected to be received by the end of the month.

The figure for this year's first quarterly returns are expected to be enhanced considerably by the fact that persons and corporations having a net income of more than $5,000 were given an additional period of 60 days grace before filing their complete returns.

The indication by Treasury officials of an anticipated reduction of revenue led to a stimulation of business generally throughout the United States, it was declared.

Basing their estimate on the first quarterly receipts, Treasury officials yesterday declared that the total revenue coming into the Treasury from income taxes alone for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1926, would probably total $1,751,000,000 as compared with $1,880,000,000 received during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1925.

Treasury officials are of the opinion that the new revenue law will produce as much in tax receipts as the old did, basing their opinion on the fact that low rates of taxation usually stimulate business generally.

WILSON ASSAILS SYSTEM

Charges of abuse in the handling of Federal patronage in Southern states culminated in the House yesterday with the introduction of a bill to put Federal appointees on oath that they had not used improper methods to gain office.

Representative Wilson (Democrat), Mississippi, first charged that Federal jobs in his State were "sold in the open market to the highest bidder," and then Representative Wurzbach (Republican), Texas, one of the leaders in the patronage fight, introduced the bill which he said would correct the Southern patronage system.

"In my State today," Mr. Wilson said, "control of Federal patronage is almost entirely in the hands of negroes. My people will not submit to negro domination." Asserting the battle cry of the Republican party in 1920 was "back to normalcy," he added that "they did—they went back to stealing."

The Wurzbach bill would make each Federal appointed officer swear that neither he nor any of his friends had made any contributions "for or in expectation or hope of" receiving the appointment.

"The bill will, in some degree," he said, "prevent the levying of tribute upon applicants for Federal appointments."

THE 79TH MARCHES IN DRIVING RAIN IN FINAL REVIEW

Gen. Pershing Personally Pins Distinguished Service Crosses on Recipients — Recapitulation by Gen. Kuhn Shows the Division Suffered 7,500 Casualties, 1,500 of Them Fatal, During 47 Days' Battle of the Meuse-Argonne.

By MAJ. GEN. JOSEPH E. KUHN.

(Commander of Camp Meade, where drafted men from District, Maryland and Pennsylvania were formed into the famous Seventy-ninth division, and led by the general in France.)

JANUARY 11-12, the artillery brigade, commanded by Brig. Gen. Andrew J. Hero, rejoined the division which was now again completely assembled for the first time since the preceding June. With the arrival of the brigade, active preparations commenced for the coming divisional and corps horse shows, the former scheduled for February 27 at Pierrefitte and the latter for March 21 at Lerouville. Many of the animals of the division were suffering from mange contracted in unsanitary French stables and it required a hard fight to eradicate the disease. The shows were both most successful, the division securing first place with ease at the corps show.

Between February 19 and March 1 I was assigned to temporary command of the Ninth corps with headquarters at St. Mihiel. The corps comprised the Thirty-fifth, Seventy-ninth and Eighty-eighth divisions. During my brief incumbency as corps commander, the Thirty-fifth division at Commercy was reviewed by Gen. Pershing and His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales.

During this time I also paid a short visit to the American Army of Occupation at Coblenz, proceeding by automobile via Treves where the night was spent and reaching the Rhine on the evening of the second day. The German which now presented itself was far different from the one I had known in 1915 and 1918. The former arrogant and cocksure had given way to a noticeable meekness and resignation as the Germans were made to feel the force of their own well known words "es ist bestimmt" (it is ordered). The Americans had helped themselves to the best of everything for their offices and billets and were, so to speak, sitting on top of the world. While in Coblenz, I was assigned a room in the Kaiserhof hotel where I enjoyed a real bathtub with plenty of hot water, my first since landing in France. A boat trip up the Rhine through the Lorelei and a visit to British headquarters at Cologne completed my itinerary.

past with resolute and elastic step. Line after line emerged from the rain and mist on the left to disappear again in the rain and mist on the right. I have witnessed many parades and reviews in many places, but none so wonderful and inspiring as the review of the 22,000 men of the Seventy-ninth division in a downpour of rain on that April morning in France. By giving of unusual setting, the weather, after all, proved a blessing in disguise.

Following the review, Gen. Pershing delivered an inspiring address to the assembled officers and then inspected the motor transportation which had been drawn up in a long column on a paved road. Freshly painted and with hoods raised to keep the rain off, the exodus of the motor trucks gave little evidence of their nine months' hard campaigning.

Homeward Bound

Following the review, all guns, wagons, animals and surplus equipment were turned in, and on April 19th began the exodus from the Rimaucourt area for the port of embarkation at St. Nazaire. It was a cheerful and happy lot of men who piled into the side-door Pullmans, the familiar 40 and 8's that carried the artillery directly to St. Nazaire and the remainder of the division to a bulleting area south of Nantes, along the Loire river. Ideal weather, beautiful country, clean and orderly villages and the kindly and grateful French people contributed to make our stay of three weeks in the Nantes area most delightful, as well as to leave a better impression of France on the people than had at first been formed from the devastated and battle-torn regions.

Division headquarters was established at Reze, a suburb of Nantes, in an attractive villa with modern plumbing. The owner of the villa, Baron de Narp, with his wife and two young sons, were taken in as guests of the headquarters mess and proved themselves a most charming and refined family.

While in the Nantes area the division judge advocate learned that a number of the men were entitled to their final naturalization papers by virtue of the law conferring citizenship for military service. The issuing of these papers was made the occasion of a simple but impressive ceremony, which I attended. In a village the battalion had been drawn up in a hollow square, with the recipients, bands and colors in the center. After appropriate remarks by the judge advocate and the playing of the "Star-Spanish Banner," each man, as his name was called, stepped forward to receive his certificate of naturalization. The poor judge advocate had quite a struggle calling off the

Promptly at 10 a. m. Gen. Pershing took his position in front of the closed massed division, and after rendition of honors, proceeded with his inspection, riding rapidly around the artillery and trains on the left of the line and then dismounting to inspect the foot organizations. For a short interval only the rain added to the confusion, but the beautifully polished shoes and the immaculate puttees were thickly plastered with the soupy mud of the roads.

Just as the march past commenced, the floodgates of heaven opened, but, nothing daunted, the troops swept by their commander in chief in serried ranks to the stirring music of seven massed bands, first the infantry and the engineers, then the horse-drawn trains and the artillery. With faces aglow with the pink of health and a cascade of raindrops dripping from their steel helmets, they strode

Italian and Slav names, which their owners frequently failed to recognize. Struck by the number of men wearing round stripes, I directed all such to stop forward one pace. Of the 92 men receiving papers, 46, just one-half, had been wounded in battle. They had earned their citizenship, but the question naturally arises, What, after all, is an American?

Getting out of France proved much more difficult than getting in. What with inspections, auditing of accounts, checking property, making out passenger lists, delousing and exchanging "beaucoup francs" for American money, everybody was kept on the jump up to the moment of embarkation. Finally came the great day when the first unit of the division, the 310th field artillery, embarked on board the U. S. S. Tiger on May 12. Between that date and May 19 all elements of the division were afloat on twelve transports, headed for home, the last to leave being the Kroonland, carrying division headquarters, the 304th engineers and two companies of the 316th infantry. But how different was the homeward voyage across the Atlantic from the tense and silent trip of 11 months before? Now was a straight course with all lights burning, bands playing and all hands as happy as children.

Fighting Machine Ends

With the voyage home, the life of the 79th Division as a Division came to an end. Landing between May 29th and June 2nd at Hoboken, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, New York and Charleston, its elements became widely scattered and were never reassembled. The machinery of demobilization at Camps Dix and Meade worked swiftly and smoothly and by the middle of June the hardened and disciplined veterans of the 79th Division had all been discharged and returned to civil life. A few days of paper work sufficed to wipe out the splendid fighting machine, built up after months of patient training, exhausting marches and grueling battles.

In the 47 days' battle of the Meuse-Argonne, the division had suffered about 7,500 battle casualties, of whom nearly 1,500 made the supreme sacrifice. It is a heavy toll, but indicative of America's spirit of sacrifice for a just cause. No one will give up the courage and honest thought to our achievement in the world war can help feeling a sense of pride in American manhood.

To my comrades of the 79th Division, officers and men alike, I owe a deep and lasting gratitude for their unwavering loyalty, bravery and devotion to duty. As long as a nation possesses such men, it can face the future with assurance of the security of its ideals and institutions.

THE END.

clair's Mammoth Oil Co. leased the Teapot Dome reserve in Wyoming. An application by these defendants for allowance of a special appeal has been pending since February 23.

Fall Held Powerless.

The principal contention raised in the demurrers was that Mr. Fall had no authority or power conferred upon him by law in connection with the leasing of naval oil reserves and because of the lack of authority he could not in law be a party to a conspiracy. Justice Stafford overruled this contention and held Mr. Fall had acted with the color of authority and hence was liable for the acts done by him under such color of authority.

Practically the same questions of law as were involved in the demurrers to the conspiracy indictments are involved in the bribery indictments against Mr. Doheny and his son and Mr. Fall. Arguments on the demurrers in the bribery cases have not yet been heard.

The action of the appellate court means that the government has suffered another setback as it will be at least six months before arguments are heard on the special appeal which has just been allowed.

Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, special counsel for the government in these cases, in their reply brief in the conspiracy appeal matter, accused counsel for the defendants of playing for time and seeking to delay the ultimate trials. Counsel for the defendants denied that they were delaying matters and placed the blame for the delay upon government counsel.

Frank J. Hogan, of Washington, appeared for Mr. Doheny; Henry A. Wise appeared for Mr. Fall and George P. Hoover appeared for Mr. Sinclair.

Walsh Regrets Delay.

When informed of the decisions of the Supreme Court and of the Court of Appeals in the oil cases, Senator Walsh, of Montana, who took the leading part in the Senators' oil investigation, said last night:

"The granting of the writ by the Supreme Court was to be expected in view of the importance of the case. I regret exceedingly that there shall be further delay in the other cases. An appeal of that character is not permitted by the laws of most States and I question the wisdom of the law permitting it."

MATTEOTTI KILLED FIGHTING KIDNAPERS. PROSECUTOR HOLDS

Alibis Held Disproved When Evidence in Italian Trial Is Summed Up.

JURY TO GET QUESTION OF GRAVE PROVOCATION

Court Overrules Attorney for Crown in Admitting Matter of Cause.

Chieti, Italy, March 22 (A. P.).—Retracting point by point the evidence disproving every detail of the alibis presented by Amerigo Dumini and the four other men charged with slaying the socialist deputy, Matteotti, the crown prosecutor, Signor Salucci, this afternoon summed up the prosecution's case with the argument that all five had co-operated in abducting Matteotti without intending to injure him, but had killed him when he put up unexpectedly fierce resistance.

The large crowd assembled, including many fashionably dressed women, listened in tense silence as Salucci demanded punishment of the accused as perpetrators of a common crime. Far from contesting the defense's contention that the deputy was the arch-enemy of fascism and had belittled Italy's war victory, the prosecutor pointed out that these very factors had led to his kidnapping. But Salucci maintained that, whereas political considerations might have explained, even excused, the abduction, they had no bearing on the actual murder, which, by reason of the fact that it was unpremeditated, necessarily could not have had political motives.

Alibis Are Held Disproved.

Reconstructing the crime, he showed how Dumini had brought the other accused men together to aid him, how the alleged alibi of Malleria, Poveromo, Viola and Volpi, that they had remained in their hotel rooms during the time the crime was committed, was disproved by the actual evidence; how the medical evidence and the confessions of various supposed accomplices such as Filippello and Putato, proved that Matteotti had died from injuries, and not a natural death, and how Dumini could not have driven the automobile because of his injured arm, in addition to the fact that eye witnesses agreed that it was not he at the wheel.

Previous to the beginning of the summing up, the court took a step

REPRESENTING THE DISTRICT.

The growing importance of the citizens advisory council in its relations with Congress is reflected in an article contributed to this page by Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, chairman of the Senate committee on the District of Columbia. Probably no man has ever given more of his time and serious thought to the needs of the District of Columbia than has Senator Capper since he has been at the head of the District committee. He has, indeed, represented the District in the absence of any one authorized to speak for it, and he has had the interests of Washington and the welfare of its citizens deeply at heart. His discussion of the functions of the citizens advisory council, therefore, have more than passing significance.

It was only this year that both bodies of Congress officially recognized the council, and through it the people of Washington. Therefore, when the Kansas senator suggests that, in his opinion, the recommendations of the council would probably carry more weight with the members of Congress, with the District commissioners, and with the people of the District, if the membership of the organization could be brought a little closer to the great body of citizens of the District, his opinion should be accepted as that of one speaking with authority. He believes that "serious consideration might well be given the idea of having the individual members of the various neighborhood and civic associations ballot directly on the membership of the advisory council instead of electing the council indirectly through the federations," as at present. He suggests also that the women of Washington should be represented on the council.

Eight members of the advisory council will be elected April 3 by the present membership of the Federation of Citizens Associations. It is therefore too late to make any change in the manner of choosing the council this year, but mindful of the sentiment in Congress as reflected by Senator Capper, it would be well if the 98 members of the federation should give careful thought to the suggestions made by the chairman of the Senate District committee and lay plans for the change which he outlines.

What most people call "ambition" is just a lazy man's wish that he could bat 400 without the annoyance of practice.

THE WAGE QUESTION.

A resolution has been introduced in the Senate asking for an investigation of the strike of textile workers in New Jersey. Obviously the main purpose of the proposed investigation is to show that the present policy of tariff protection to industries is not the success claimed for it. As one senator states:

This industry is a highly protected one, favored by the national government, and I think we can very well justify an investigation as to the wages which are being paid upon that ground.

This is a fair statement; and the Senate, Congress and the people want to know the facts. But the facts may be obtained, not only in regard to New Jersey textile industries but all textile industries, without launching into a political hearing.

Doubtless the New Jersey mill owners will welcome any investigation that will be sufficiently broad to reach the real inception of the trouble; but the public is not interested in anything so much as the rate of wages paid, and whether the wages are "living wages." If they are not living wages, that fact alone stands out as an indictment against the present system.

The Department of Labor Monthly Review has recently published an article on the question: "Are average wages keeping pace with the cost of living?" in which the following appears:

In 1920 there was a very marked increase in wage rates; and while the cost of living took a jump also, the spread between wage rates and living costs was narrowed almost to the fading point. Since 1921 hourly wage rates of organized workers have been going consistently up, with the exception of the break in 1922, while on the other hand the cost of living has not varied sharply. Today the average union wage rate in the United States will buy 37.1 per cent more of living on the 1913 standard than it would in 1913. The hourly rates of workers in woolen mills increased 201 per cent over the rates in 1913, making an index of 301 in 1924. Since cost of living increased 70.7 per cent (making an index of 170.7) the apparent purchasing power of the wage rate measured in terms of 1913 standard of living was 176.3, a clear gain of 76.3 per cent.

This means that compared with 1913, average wages in the United States in 1924 increased in purchasing power more than 76 per cent. In the woolen and cotton mills of the United States, hourly wages since 1921, according to the Department of Labor, have increased approximately twice as fast as the cost of living.

The hourly wages for silk and woolen workers in New Jersey for 1913, 1919, 1920 and 1924, as given by the Department of Labor, throw some light on the matter:

Broad silk weavers—1913, 29 cents per hour; 1919, 45 cents per hour.

Loom fixers—1913, 36 cents per hour; 1919, 58 cents per hour.
Laborers—1913, 22 cents per hour; 1919, 42 cents per hour.

Woolen mills—weavers: 1913, 22 cents per hour; 1924, 75 cents per hour.
Spinners (females)—1913, 17 cents per hour; 1924, 69 cents per hour.

In discussing the matter, Senator Edge, of New Jersey, said:

If the workmen and workwomen are not receiving a living wage or what is determined to be a fair and adequate wage, they have a perfect right to strike.

The crux of the whole controversy is this: Are the employees in the textile mills of New Jersey receiving a fair and living wage? Certainly they are receiving approximately 75 per cent more than they received in 1913.

Unconscious humor: Hanging an automobile license tag on some of the contraptions they are hung on.

REVAMPING THE LEAGUE.

Foreign Minister Stresemann's statement to the German reichstag is a model of frankness, which should be imitated by the leaders of government everywhere. He advised the reichstag that Germany reserves the right to withdraw her application for membership in the league of nations in the event the decision of the new commission regarding reconstruction of the council does not correspond with Germany's expectations.

"Germany's expectations" are, of course, that she will be accepted as an equal of the other great powers. Apparently Dr. Stresemann prefers that the league council shall be reconstructed on the principle of the equality of nations, so that it may become "an efficient instrument for the promulgation of peace and the promotion of humanitarian ideals." But he is a practical man, and he hopes to place Germany in the council in any event.

Germany must continue to strive to enter the league on equal terms with the world powers, even if the league be nothing but a diplomatic instrument for furthering the special interests of nations.

Premier Briand intimated, when the commission to reform the council was announced, that the provision requiring unanimity in voting would be abolished. Thus a nation like Brazil would no longer be in a position to thwart the great powers in executing their political plans through the league machinery. But on the other hand, with unanimity abolished, it will be desirable for each of the powers to "pack" the council with its own allies, if possible, in order to checkmate the maneuvers of its rivals. The league is to become, as Dr. Stresemann frankly describes it, "nothing but a diplomatic instrument for furthering the special interests of nations." The concession to the principle of "universality," embodied in the unanimous voting rule, was shown to be a failure at Geneva, because it interfered with the smooth working of the machinery in behalf of the special interests of the great powers.

Dr. Stresemann has earned the thanks of all small nations by exposing the purpose of the great powers of Europe. The little nations are learning that the league is nothing more than a mechanism for facilitating the intrigues of the great powers. The dream of a world forum of nations, giving and exacting justice between nations great and small, is broken by the disclosure of the real character of the league of nations. It was intended to be an agency for enabling a few great powers to dominate all other nations. Temporarily it failed, because of the unanimity rule. That rule is to be abolished and then the small nations are no longer to interfere. The league will be molded to suit the ideas of the great powers. The question that suggests itself is: How will the great powers then compel the little nations to remain in the league and cooperate in measures aimed against themselves?

Talk of breaking the Solid South seems idiotic when you look back over the list of candidates it has survived.

SAVING MONEY.

If Congress appropriates the $260,000 asked for by the District of Columbia public buildings commission, for the purpose of bringing together and consolidating some of the bureaus of the government, there will be a large annual saving in rents paid by the government. In order to accomplish this, sentiment must give way; and the pension building, sacred to the memory of the old soldiers, must be surrendered to the activities of the Treasury Department, now cramped for room. The consolidation of many of the bureaus of the Interior Department under one roof will save rent money. The bureaus of the Department of Commerce now in the Interior building will be removed and placed elsewhere.

The changes will save the government approximately $190,000 annually. With this proposed consolidation and the new building program, together with its priceless documents and records, will soon be in first-class order.

The $260,000 asked for is to cover the expenses of remodeling the different buildings, necessary clerk hire and incidentals. It is an economical plan.

Maybe Europeans cuss America just to fool their creditors until they can get passports.

GROWTH OF THE PEANUT.

The peanut has long since outgrown the circus and street-corner vender with his whistling heater. It is an important article of commerce and food. More than 40,000,000 bushels are produced or grown in this country, out of which are manufactured millions of pounds of peanut butter and oil, besides flour and other delicious comestibles in daily use.

Practically no portion of the peanut goes to waste, or need go to waste. From the peanut kernel are manufactured many different confections. It is an article of growing popularity, and is now found all over the world in some form of commerce.

It is estimated that more than $120,000,000 is invested in the peanut industry in the United States, employing more than 150,000 hands. Upward of 10,000,000 acres of land are used in the cultivation of the peanut.

The American people are great peanut consumers—they consume not only much of the domestic crop, but about 2,000,000 bushels of imported peanuts, raised principally in China, Japan, France and Spain. It costs far less to grow and produce peanuts, peanut oil and other peanut products in China and Japan than in the United States.

Once symbolic of humility, the peanut has assumed large proportions in commerce and gastronomy and international politics.

Correct this sentence: "Next month," said she, "John will get a raise of $5 a week and we shall save the extra money."

INTERMEDIATE BANKS.

The intermediate credit banks were the last link in the chain of Federal establishments created for the purpose of assisting the farmers.

Federal intermediate banks do not make loans directly to individuals, but assist in financing sound cooperative marketing associations and furnish discount facilities for State and national banks and properly organized agricultural credit corporations and live-stock loan companies.

During 1925 these intermediate credit banks loaned to cooperative marketing associations more than $124,174,000. Discounts amounted to $52,458,000. The cooperatives must show that they fill a need, control a sufficient amount of the commodity to be able to function economically, and have a sound marketing program and business organization.

The Federal intermediate credit banks have proved a reliable agency in critical periods throughout the West and South.

Another good way to study the language is to stop a man who is chasing his hat and ask for a match.

AMERICAN WAR UNITS.

It is interesting to learn that the American battle monuments commission is revising and reviewing and editing the history of every American unit that took part in the world war. In addition, a map giving the daily movements of the front lines is being prepared and a description of the movements compiled.

Following the completion of the maps and data, they are mailed to all former officers for criticism and comment. All this work is in connection with the erection of monuments, or markers, either by the government or by private individuals or organizations.

It is hoped that this will be the end of all monument or marker work in connection with the war so far as the United States is concerned.

The Kentucky Jockey club is to be highly commended for its drastic action last week in ruling off the turf for life four of the most successful jockeys of the country and two owners of race horses charged with participating in "fixed" races. One of the riders confessed that he and the others had accepted bribes of $1,000 each for pulling horses. American racing for the most part has been free from scandal, but like every other popular recreation in which "Lady Luck" plays a part, there have been occasions when suspicion has clouded it. The Kentucky association's drastic ruling shows that the spirit of the sport is on the square.

Approval by the Senate committee on the District of Columbia of the bill passed by the House, providing for two bathing beaches at a cost of $345,000, is presumed to be the precursor of a favorable vote in the Senate. The location of the beaches is left to the District commissioners. It is possible that the Senate will fix the locations; but if it will only pass the bill and expedite the construction of the pools in time for this summer's use, the people of the District will not quarrel over the question of locations.

The weather bureau reports that the loss by tornadoes in the United States during the last two years has been more than $51,000,000. There were no less than 115 tornadoes in 1925 and 130 in 1924. The loss of life in 1925 is estimated at about 853, which is twice the loss in 1924. The damage caused in 1925 is estimated at $25,000,000. Is there any way to forestall tornadoes and forestall loss of life and property? Here is a field for investigation by science.

The country is in for a deluge of wet and dry talk before a Senate subcommittee. Both sides are claiming that they will profit by the "disclosures." If either side comes forward with a genuine convert as a result of the hearings the public excitement will reach the boiling point.

Most people call an airplane "it" instead of "she." You see, men keep it under control most of the time.

The Worst Joke I heard today was told to me by Col. Chapman, of Knoxville, Tenn. He is the head of that Smoky Mountain National Park that lies between Tennessee and North Carolina. It's 450 thousand acres of the wildest Country in America, and if they can get the Government to make it into a Park it will be one of the greatest Parks in America. There are hundreds of different kinds of plants and trees in it, all kinds of wild game, and you won't have to go to the Yellowstone to see Bears. It's not far from Knoxville, and also close to Asheville, North Carolina. I certainly am going to go up in there some time. That is the place where the Cherokee Indians that didn't go west before the war stayed, and have lived all this time. This Knoxville is some place, and like all the Southern Cities it is certainly booming. It's on that Tennessee River that's the greatest Water Power River in the United States. It's the one Muscle Shoals is on, but there is room for a hundred other dams, each one making the other better. So in years to come you remember what I told you about old "Smoky Mountain."

Well, the Col. had a story to tell. The Pastor of a Colored congregation in the South so pestered his Bishop with requests for help that the Bishop finally wrote him and told him that in the future such appeals would be useless. Not long afterwards another letter came from the old colored Preacher. The Bishop opened it and it read as follows: "Dear Bishop, This here ain't no appeal. It's a report. I has no pants."

Why She Adjourned.

THE ADVISORY COUNCIL.

By SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER, Chairman, Senate Committee on the District of Columbia.

Though the people of the District of Columbia have no direct representation in Congress, it is quite apparent to me, based on my experience as chairman of the Senate District committee, that the residents of the National Capital are fully as interested and concerned with the problems of local government as the citizens of any State or municipality in the entire country. Indeed, it seems to me that a larger percentage of Washington people take an active, instead of a merely passive, interest in local affairs than is generally the case in a large city. This is no doubt due to the fact that there is a very high standard of intelligence among Washington people, and while they do not enjoy all the rights and privileges of a democratic form of government, they have not by any means supinely resigned themselves to the rule of a few autocrats. They are interested in the local press in the upbuilding of a truly progressive spirit and a broad-visioned program of local improvement.

I have watched with much interest the development and work of the citizens advisory council, which of course is still in a more or less experimental stage. It was not intended to, and of course never could, take the place of the neighborhood associations in actually formulating and crystallizing the sentiment of the citizens on matters of local government. Its functions are purely advisory, and, if I may take the intent expressed in its charter, the advice given is to be used by the commissioners of the District of Columbia in arriving at their own decisions and recommendations to Congress. Furthermore, what might be termed the charter constitution of the advisory council, expressly provides that the council shall not in any way restrict the activities or abridge the rights of the two federations or of their respective member bodies.

This seems to me a particularly desirable provision, in view of the method employed to elect members of the council, because it constitutes a safeguard against what might otherwise be termed a "supernumerary" responsible to no one in particular and yet binding all. This is said, of course, without any reflection at all upon the character or motives of the men who constitute the present citizens advisory council. They are deserving of praise and genuine thanks for the time and thought they have devoted to the affairs of the District, wholly without compensation other than the knowledge of a public duty capably discharged. Their reports and recommendations always have the respectful consideration of the Senate District committee, and while we differ occasionally, we are glad—and I think I can speak for

The Laborer's Boswell

By GLENN FRANK

MANY years ago a Scottish youth by the name of James Boswell forgot himself into immortality by becoming a persistent eavesdropper of the mind of the great Dr. Samuel Johnson.

Boswell's Life of Johnson towers above the rank and file of biographies, written by men who have studied their subjects from musty records, for obvious reasons.

It is from the life, not from the library. It is warm with the warmth of human contact and rich with the colors of reality.

A few years ago Whiting Williams, a bit restive from reading armchair discussions of the labor problem, donned overalls and became a sort of Boswell to the laboring man, working with him, eating with him, talking with him, eavesdropping his mind. The result has been a series of very interesting books. I have just finished reading his latest volume called "Mainsprings of Men."

In the introduction of this volume, Mr. Williams attempts a summary of the outstanding impressions that his "overalls" experiences have brought to him. I do not know better how to lure the thinking employer and thinking employee into reading this interesting book than by passing on this list of five impressions. They are worth pasting over the employer's desk and into the workman's hat.

"First. The astonishing consequences which follow in the lives of millions from the restrictions of their material and their dollars-and-cents conditions, consequences physiological, intellectual, emotional and spiritual.

"Second. The surprising vastness of the gap which everywhere among the workers separates the holder of a 'swell' job from the holder of a 'bum' one, and most of all divides the possessor of any job at all from the luckless vagrant who possesses none and knows not where to find one.

"Third. The amazing ignorance, on the part of employer and employee, of each other's deeper purposes and desires—the incredible ease and certainty with which each of these groups proceeds to justify to itself its own viewpoint regarding the other. So far from caring to indulge in mutual study, each appears so often to feel that it already knows too much about the other!

"Fourth. The unbelievable importance of the worker's feelings and experiences, rather than his logic or reason as a factor in all his viewpoints and attitudes.

"Fifth. The unity of life and labor—the complete impossibility of walling off the factory from the home, the worker from the citizen, of dividing the hankering of a man's working-hours off from those of his leisure hours."

And I am sure that these significant impressions can be conveyed to the mind of the average employer and employee far more effectively by the sort of human documents Mr. Williams has written than by the more stately discussions of the labor problem.

most of the members of the committee—to have the benefit of this cross-section of public opinion in the District on matters of local legislation.

I think the present members of the council have borne in mind the seriousness of their task and the responsibility that it implies—for it is indeed a serious, and I might say sacred task, to take a part even unofficially in the government of 500,000 people, and the capital of a great nation.

I think the recommendations of the council might carry more weight in Congress, with the District commissioners, and with the people of the District, if the membership of the organization could be brought a little closer to the great body of citizens of the District. In the election of United States senators, for instance, we have discarded the indirect method of election by the State legislatures, and it seems to me that serious consideration might well be given to the idea of having the individual members of the various neighborhood and civic associations ballot directly on the membership of the advisory council instead of electing the council indirectly through the federations. This is merely a suggestion, of course, for the study and consideration of those directly interested—the people of the District themselves.

It occurs to me that the women of the District of Columbia, who are at least as vitally affected as the men by legislation, or the lack of it, on matters of public health, police protection, education, and the like, should be absolutely assured of at least one place in the membership of the council. Possibly, too, a referendum provision would be useful in case of doubt as to the real attitude of constituent organizations.

Of one thing there can be no doubt whatever: the citizens associations of the District of Columbia are of real value in the upbuilding of the community, and should have the active support of every one who claims to be an American citizen.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Self-Respect.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Your Sunday editorial, "Providing for Disaster," seems to include the law and the prophets in the following paragraph:

"So long as a few European powers arrogate to themselves the right to dominate a league of nations, claiming special powers, and then expect other nations to cooperate voluntarily with their subordinating their own rights, nothing but failure and confusion may be expected."

Whoever has observed human nature can hardly expect anything else, either in a league of nations, or any other combination, international or otherwise. Look where you will, wherever human beings are gathered together in large or small groups, either as nations or as organizations, you see the same principle at work. Certain individuals "arrogate to themselves the right to dominate," and this type of person naturally expects others to cooperate, voluntarily subordinating their own rights, nothing but failure and confusion may be expected. It is this trait of human nature which constitutes the war germ, for seldom do you find all members of any group willing to abandon their self-respect and submit to domination. Sometimes we hear one say that it is better to follow the line of least resistance and so avoid friction. But who really respects such people? And how long is the friction averted? The day comes sooner or later when they must fight it out, and the sooner that day comes the better. It is on first meeting a domineering person that the test should come, and fortunate for you if, at this moment, you waver not. Your opponent will respect you, even though he feels temporarily peeved on meeting resistance, where he had hoped for a mush of concession. HINDA BURKE, Washington, March 22.

What Ails Congress?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Representative Thomas, of Oklahoma, wants to know why there is decadence in Congress. If he will consider the situation it will become clear to him. What was he or any other congressman or any other elected officer of the government selected for?—to be a boss with firm convictions of his own what is best for the country at large, or to be a puppet at the beck of cranks and fanatics that have not enough brains to conduct a successful business, yet imagine that they are the chosen ones to dictate, under dire threats, the policies of a government?

Where would a big business of the present day be if the heads of it had to listen to and heed the vapors of the janitor, office boy, scrub lady and others of like capacity?

Politics, say what you please, is broadminded, can and has run governments and empires successfully. A few more fool laws, by the powers that be, to please bigots and we will be plunged into a religious war.

FRED T. HAFELINGER, Washington, March 22.

Don't Fuss With Mustard Plasters!

Musterole Works Without the Blister—Easier, Quicker
Don't mix a mess of mustard, flour and water when you can relieve pain, soreness or stiffness with a little clean, white Musterole. Musterole is made of pure oil of mustard and other helpful ingredients, in the form of a white ointment. It takes the place of mustard plasters, and will not blister. Musterole usually gives prompt relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frost-bite, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

GRAND OPERA STARS AND LOCAL COMPANY OFFER "LOHENGRIN"

Roessler, Althouse, Boursakaya, Ivantzoff and Nielsen Excel in Wagner Roles.

CAPITAL CHORUS SINGS
AS ABLY AS LEADERS

Orchestra and Ballet Fine;
200 Veterans From Hospitals Are Guests.

"Lohengrin," one of Wagner's greater operas, was presented by the Washington Opera company at the auditorium last night before a representative audience. The company was augmented by several visiting stars, notably Marcella Roessler, as Elsa; Paul Althouse, as Lohengrin; Ina Boursakaya, as Ortrud; Ivan Ivantzoff, as Frederick Telramund; and Sigurd Nielsen, basso, the king.
A chorus of 120 voices did much to maintain the high standard of the production and the scenery and costumes from the stock of the Metropolitan Opera company mounted the opera adequately. "Lohengrin" was given under the direction of General Director Edouard Albion, with Jacques Samassoud as conductor of the orchestra of 60 musicians.
Approximately 200 world war veterans from Walter Reed, Mount Alto and the naval hospitals were guests of the Washington Opera company.

Marcella Roessler, soprano, as Elsa, was satisfactory. She was thoroughly familiar with the exacting requirements of this role and displayed histrionic as well as vocal ability. The traditional beauties of the two great songs of her role.

"I suppose it was the first fellow who had a surplus of something that other people could use."

"Many different things have been used to serve as money as civilization developed. Skins have been a medium of exchange in many hunting communities."

"In the Southern Colonies of America tobacco was used as money for a long time. The early Romans measured wealth in oxen."

"The earliest known coins are those of the Lydians in Asia Minor dating from the 7th century B.C."

"Daddy says some old coins are worth a lot of money. Well, I've kept a nickel for a week. Is that old enough?"

JOE LOURIE IS SINCERE

For two acts William Anthony McGuire's new play, "A Great Little Guy," seen at the Belasco last night, was just "wise-cracking" comedy suggesting a poorly fashioned compound of "The Show Off" and "Is Zat So," but with a sufficient quota of bright lines to invest it with the unobtrusive humor of the newspaper comic strip.

Then with the third act there developed a humanism and a credibility previously lacking and somehow as the curtain falls there fades from the recollection the defects of the first portion and the play assumes a certain quality of universal appeal after all.

The redemption is chiefly due to some sincere and effective acting by Joe Laurie, Jr., who has been snatched from musical comedy to star in a Gregory Kelly role and also a refreshingly unique character impersonation by Charles Dow Clark, who portrays a cynically unsentimental sentimentalist. Possibly the earlier reaction to the play's mood was occasioned by the suggestion that the hackneyed plot of the humble clerk who rises to fame and wealth through American bluff would be again utilized, but with an O. Henry twist the last act portrays the futility of pretense and saves the night for one member of the audience at least.

ARRESTED CASHIER WILL BE BROUGHT TO CITY THIS WEEK

Shaw, Accused of Absconding With Bank Funds Here, Waives Extradition.

WAS LIVING IN FLORIDA AS REAL ESTATE MAN

Says He Is Anxious to Straighten Matter Out in Washington.

Special to The Washington Post. Jacksonville, Fla., March 22.—Robert C. Shaw will leave Jacksonville before the end of the week on his way back to Washington, D. C., to face charges of having absconded with $11,000 of the funds of the American Savings & Commercial Bank of Washington, of which some two years ago he was the cashier.

Eluding the Department of Justice for many months, he had come to Florida as a "blunder boy" to sell real estate. The former bank cashier was entering the lobby of the Daytona Beach hotel, at which he was living, when arrested.

His arrest was a great shock to Shaw, and for some moments he was unable to speak.

"I'll go with you," he is reported to have said. "Let me get my clothes, please."

The federal officers accompanied him to his room and asked him if he could make bond.

"I can't here," said Shaw, "but I believe I could up in Washington."

He was taken before the United States commissioner in Daytona Beach, where his bond was placed at $7,500. He spent the night there in jail.

Today he was brought to Jacksonville and, after spending part of the night in jail, was taken before Judge Rhydon Call, of the United States district court, where, after he waived extradition proceedings, an order for his removal to Washington was issued.

"I want to get back to Washington and get all this straightened out," he is said to have told federal officers.

Shaw was identified by a photograph. Following identification, the federal officers watched him for several days. Shaw has made no effort to deny his identity when arrested.

Miller's Antiseptic Oil, Known as Snake Oil

STOPS PAIN

From coast to coast men and women are singing the praises of "Snake Oil," a most powerful, penetrating, pain relieving liniment. It will penetrate thickest sole leather in 3 minutes. Mrs. B. Werner, New Orleans, La., writes: "Thanks to your wonderful penetrating oil, it relieved me of rheumatism and deep seated chest trouble after other remedies failed."

"I had rheumatism so bad I had to walk on crutches for nine years," says H. C. Hendrix, old soldier of Minneapolis, Minn. "After three months' treatment with Snake Oil I laid off my crutches and now can walk like a boy."

J. B. Moore, Pittsburgh, Pa., railroad man, says: "Snake Oil" is the only liniment that ever gave me relief from rheumatism. I use it regularly after being exposed to bad weather." For rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, stiff joints, pain in back and limbs, corns, bunions, chest colds, sore throat, "Snake Oil" is said to be without an equal. Refuse imitations. WOMAN ADMITS BEATING WIFE TO FORCE DIVORCE

Would Have Killed Her, Says Chicago Divorcee, if Gun Had Been Available.

GOLF CLUB HER WEAPON

Chicago, March 22 (By A. P.).—Mrs. Irene Osborne, divorcee, who today beat Mrs. Beatrice Caine with a golf club in an effort to force her to divorce her husband, John F. Caine, department manager of the American Can Co., was in jail today under $2,500 bond charged with assault with intent to kill. Early today she entered Mrs. Caine's apartment while Caine was in New York and administered the beating.

Mrs. Osborne, who says she was engaged to Caine at the time of his marriage five years ago and professes a great love for him, told the police that she went to Mrs. Caine to ask her to give up her husband.

"I asked her frankly if she would get a divorce? She said that she would not, and I became terribly angry. I picked up the first thing that came to my hand. It happened to be a golf club and I started to hit her with it. I only hit her two or three times. Then she grabbed the end of the stick and I couldn't swing any more."

Mrs. Caine, who was unable to appear in court today because of her injuries, said that she was awakened by a blow on the chest and found Mrs. Osborne standing over her with a golf club and revolver. She told of previous attempts by Mrs. Osborne to get her to divorce her husband and of letters threatening her life.

Mrs. Osborne denied having a revolver, saying, "If I had one, I would have killed her."

Women Discover Short Radio Waves

Leningrad, Russia, March 22 (By A. P.).—Discovery by women scientists of short electro-magnetic waves which it is claimed will revolutionize radio telephony, radio telegraphy and photography, was announced today by Prof. Boris Weinberg of Leningrad university. Maria Levitskaya, a physicist, discovered waves measuring less than four-tenths of a millimeter (.0157 of an inch), while similar waves, estimated to be only the 100th part of a millimeter in length, were discovered by Glagoleva Arcadieva.

Murder Investigator To Call Miss Normand

Detroit, March 22 (By A. P.).—Mabel Normand, motion-picture actress, will be summoned to his office and questioned in connection with the murder of William Desmond Taylor, picture director, as soon as he returns to Los Angeles. Asa Keyes, prosecuting attorney of Los Angeles, said today. Keyes arrived in Detroit from New York last night.

Indirect Taxation Again Up in France

Paris, March 22 (By A. P.).—The government's measures to balance the budget, which were presented today to the finance committee of the chamber by M. Peret, minister of finance, stick to the principle that indirect taxation shall furnish the bulk of the required sums, amounting to about 3,000,000,000 francs, in addition to the taxes voted just before the fall of M. Doumer. M. Peret estimates the deficit at 5,000,000,000 francs, of which 2,000,000,000 are covered. Of the balance the minister proposes to raise 500,000,000 francs by a poll tax ranging from 40 to 2,000 francs levied on the same principle as the income tax, and 2,500,000,000 by a tax on business turnover from 1 3-10 per cent to 2 per cent. The cabinet today approved the plans.

SIDDONS SAYS CITY BACKS CAPPER BILL

Jurist Opposes Wadsworth Amendment to Mothers' Pension Measure.

There has never been so much unanimity of local opinion as there is now for the Capper mothers' pension bill, Justice Frederick L. Siddons declared in a letter to Senator Capper, chairman of the Senate District committee, yesterday.

Expressing opposition to the proposed amendment of Senator Wadsworth, of New York, which would, in effect, insert the New York separate agency plan for the local plan, Justice Siddons declared the problem is strictly a local one and should be considered in that light. It should be remembered, he said, that the bill deals with "local abuses and needs to be supplied and local sentiment" to be considered.

He can understand what it will mean to the Child Welfare association, of which Sophie Irene Loeb is the moving spirit, to have the New York "model" plan adopted, he said, but "uniformity" of laws has not "few signs that it ever will be."

Dr. F. W. Ballou Returns.

Dr. Frank W. Ballou, superintendent of schools, returned to his office in the Franklin school yesterday after a 10-day vacation in Florida. He was voted leave by the Board of Education as a reward for his work in connection with the Department of Superintendence convention here last month.

Street Hopes Some Stocks Still Will Have Their Day

By S. S. FONTAINE.

New York, March 22.—While the Wall street forecasters believe that the steel and the copper have yet to have their day in the market, the market reaches its final peak, the red metal issues and the petroleum have made anything but a satisfactory response to the constructive developments in their respective industries. The oils have been particularly sluggish, though the interests that sponsor the Standards—in name and in nature—are beginning to adopt an optimistic attitude toward them marketwise.

The conspicuous feature of strength today was Pan American, with many a sharp spurt following the decision of the Mexican supreme court that article 27, of the Mexican constitution, which has been a source of so much anxiety to American oil interests in Mexico, is not retroactive. The decision is not only reassuring in respect to the future treatment of American concessionaires in Mexico, but it will have a wholesome influence on the attitude of other Latin-American countries toward American interests engaged in the development of their mineral wealth.

In this connection it is interesting to note that the misunderstanding between the American interests and the Colombian government is about to be cleared up and that the interests of Pan-American Standard Oil of Indiana and other American companies operating in Colombia and Venezuela are to receive cordial co-operation on the part of the governments of these countries. In his monthly news letter from Venezuela Michael O. Shaugnessy writes:

"Since the oil industry made navigation of the air possible, it is appropriate that the airship should in turn be useful for other business. It certainly was in my case. With the Magdalena river the lowest in 30 years and travel on it practically suspended, the only way to get a comprehensive idea of the possibilities of Colombia as an oil country is from the air in 5 1/2 hours in the Scandia hydroplane. Venezuela, I traversed the 430 miles from Barranquilla to Barranca Bermeja, in which area is all of the oil territory, except only the Sinu valley, entirely under development or to be presently explored. The route of the Andean pipe line is never out of sight. The experience is indispensable to one intending to intelligently report on these developments. Incidentally, it enabled me to spend five days in the only producing field in the country and to check up on the progress of the Andean pipe line project, one of the most noteworthy of recent engineering triumphs. A log, in detail, of the journey, with photographs taken from the air, will be given in the near future.

"The cancellation of the Barco concession by the Colombian minister of industries on February 3 can only be explained as one of those unfortunate misunderstandings which often occur at just the wrong time. A presidential election in Colombia was imminent February 14. The foreign investors had shown very substantial evidence of their willingness to co-operate with the Colombians in developing the oil as well as the other resources of the country. The Neill-Ospina government, on the eve of its retirement, did the one best thing calculated to unsettle confidence of foreign capital in Colombian credit. Americans should not hastily jump at conclusions in this matter. The administration of Dr. Mendez will, undoubtedly, clear up the misunderstanding, the courts will confirm the rights of the concessionaires in the Barco concession and the unfortunate incident will soon be forgotten in the friendly cooperation of American and other foreign capital with the Colombians in the development of their country's rich natural resources."

Many high grade investment houses are calling the attention of their clients to stocks that have voting power and warning them away from many issues which have been denied the right to a vote in the selection of directors, the formulation of policies and the direction of corporate affairs. Equities that do not give the stockholder a full partnership are not, as a rule, recommended as attractive investments, because no matter how efficient the present management might be, there is always a danger that predatory powers may seize control at some time or other.

Among the houses that have emphasized the importance of a public voice in the management of corporations is Goodbody & Co., who prepared a special list of stock tables, showing stocks that have voting power and those that have not. In calling the attention of its clients to these stocks, the firm says:

"It is not necessary to take sides in the current dispute regarding the policy of controlling large corporations through ownership of a small issue of voting stocks, giving the public its participation in earnings without managerial control through comparatively large amounts on non-voting stocks. The investing public should, however, be aware of its position. A substantial commitment on the part of the management is usually required to assure the highest degree of attention to a business concern. The investing public should have a voice in the management and the power to change managements if its interests in the welfare of the company is proportionately the largest. If this right is given up, it should be compensated for by some preference or extra participation feature.

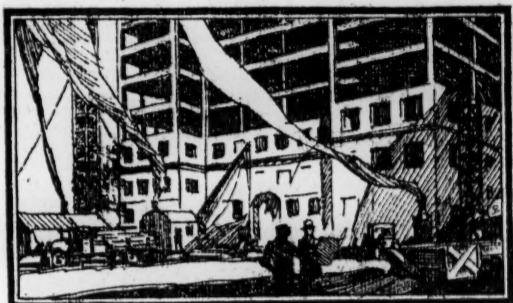

"To give proper notice to stockholders, we have indicated on our stock tables the issue which has no voting power and voting power only under certain contingencies. The question of whether the loss of voting power is compensated for by preference or price, should be carefully considered in each case."

The dry goods trade for the year ended January 31 last, was very satisfactory for the May Department Stores and its subsidiaries.

In 1925. Cash on hand rose to $7,018,170, against $5,940,995 in the previous year.

The business in pig iron continues to show an expansion. Last week the local sales exceeded 12,000 tons, or an increase of more than double that preceding week. It is understood that there are inquiries in the market for nearly 25,000 tons, and negotiations are under way for that value. This includes 4,500 tons for central foundry, 2,000 tons for Essex foundry and about 5,500 tons for the General Electric Co. In the Eastern market there are inquiries for 1,200 tons of foundry and malleable iron. This order is understood to be for immediate payment. The trade expects a considerable growth in orders from now on and at prices that are favorable.

MODERATE ADVANCES ARE SCORED BY BONDSInterest Is Centered Largely on Oils and Secondary Rails Issues.

NEW FINANCING HEAVY

New York, March 22 (By A. P.)—Bonds worked moderately higher in today's dull and uneven trading. Speculative interest was revived in the oil issues and some of the secondary railroad issues, but buying interest generally was at a low ebb.

In view of the narrow price movements in the market, investment interest was absorbed largely by the arrangements for almost $100,000,000 in new financing through the sale of both bonds and stock. A $16,000,000 offering of 6 per cent preferred stock for the new Tidewater Associated Oil Co. tomorrow at $97.50 a share, will mark the initial step in financing the huge oil merger. Another important piece of oil financing will take form in the sale of $20,000,000 Empire Gas & Fuel 15-year 6 1/2 per cent bonds within the next few days.

A $2,000,000 offering of 5 1/2 per cent bonds for the Brown & Root manufacturer of pulp and paper products, also will be made this week. Heavy advance subscriptions were reported for $7,500,000 7 per cent loan for Sao Paulo which will be marketed tomorrow at 96 1/2.

In addition to the large volume of oil company financing, several other factors contributed to the recovered demand for petroleum issues. These included persistent merger rumors, the decision of the Supreme Court to permit a review of the Doherty oil lease case, and the Mexican court decree against the retroactive provisions of the petroleum law. Unclear rumors, especially active and were followed into higher ground by Pan American and California petroleum issues.

Railway obligations were sustained by the betterment of carrier stocks, with substantial gains recorded by Atlantic Coast Line 4 1/2s, Carolina, Clinchfield and Ohio 6s, Delaware and Hudson 5s, Denver & Rio Grande and Western 5s, Erie, Pittsburgh & New Haven convertible 6 1/2s, St. Louis Southern first 5s and Frisco adjustment 6s.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, March 22 (By A. P.)—The cotton market was steady today, July contracts selling up to 15.04 1/2 and closing at 15.22, compared with 15.01 1/2 at the close of Saturday. The general market closed steady at a net advance of 11 to 11 1/2 points.

The opening was steady at a decline of 2 to 3 points in the lower Liverpool cables, Southern and lower Indian cables, and a disappointing report of a disappointing demand from Wall Street sources, which may have been prompted by the cotton report in the late stock market.

Continued also appeared to be influenced by the future of Saturday's big spinning news, which in more brokers commented upon this as an indication that the cotton market was being discounted by the new crop start. The unsettled weather reported in the cotton belt, and a considerable comment in that connection, although some traders considered it too early to be a factor on the late situation, was a factor discussed that the official report in the week would be a factor in the week's movement. The week might make an unfavorable Liverpool cables reported hedge selling and liquidation, due partly to the spinning news and partly to a continued indifferent demand for cotton goods in Lancashire. May sold here in 15.01 1/2, and the close was within a few points of the level.

Exports today, 20,556, making 6,336,196 so far this season. Port receipts, 12,041,112.

Coaches Rap Change in Pass

Limitation of Aerial Grid Play Gets Scant Praise.

Football Tutors Say Game Will Be Retarded.

The limitation placed upon the forward pass by the football rules committee is finding slight favor among the football coaches of the country. The Associated Press last night carried the expressions of opinion printed below. In almost every case the nation's football tutors doubt the wisdom of the change as Lou Little, of Georgetown, and Carly Byrd, of Maryland, did here.

"I WAS greatly surprised to read the committee had put certain restrictions on the forward pass," said Robert C. Zumpke, of Illinois. "At the meeting of the National Association of Coaches, in December, the majority sentiment was that the rules were satisfactory and that there should be no more tinkering.

"Imposition of penalties for incomplete passes is a mistake because it will make the game less daring and interesting, as the teams naturally will play conservatively in the first part of the game so as not to risk losing ground, but at the close of the game penalties of 5 yards will not stop teams that are behind from throwing all the passes they want to.

"Another effect of the forward pass rule will be to make officiating more cumbersome. Many more 5-yard penalties will have to be stepped off."

"THE rule appears to be destined to stop a team throwing passes by the wholesale in the closing minutes of a game," said Fielding H. Yost, of Michigan, "but when a passer is shooting for the moon, a 5-yard penalty is not going to mean so much, especially as the team in possession of the ball can kick on fourth down."

Doing away with the intentional safety was a good move, but "in all my 40 years of experience I have never seen over four intentional safeties," he declared. "It is something that does not happen very often."

"Restricting the use of the pass," Dr. J. W. Wiley, of Ohio State, said, "will detract from the spectacular features of the game and will place a greater burden on the coach who annually is asked by alumni and the press for a more varied offensive style. Personally, I am some-

LIFE appears to be just one stumbling block after another to Paul Berlenbach, sometime Astoria Assassin, who at the moment is nursing an assorted crop of scars and bruises assimilated in a misguided encounter in which he engaged with a rather unknown individual named Johnny Risko.

Since Berlenbach is the only member of the prize-ring industry who has been admitted to membership in the F. P. M. Marching and Social club, it may appear to some readers that it would be more tasteful for this column to search about for a reasonable sounding excuse to soften the blows suffered by its fellow member. Since truth must be told, however, Berlenbach is not the ornament to the prize-ring industry that he might be to the F. P. M. Marching and Social club. His chest expansion can work miracles on a white front shirt, but within the ring he is more like an ox than a feline, and relationship to the cat family is vital to real success in the prize ring industry.

Berlenbach in his advance to the light heavyweight championship, a bumble that he did not sacrifice in meeting Risko, was aided by two factors. He was matched with exceeding judiciousness so that on only two occasions, once against Delaney and more recently against Risko, did he have much to fear from his opponent. Dull courage was the other support.

DULL courage is the term, for Berlenbach did not fight with spirit or with any flame. His was a stubborn advance that seemed to plough on despite obstacles and opposition. Matched with men who were his physical inferiors this quality was an asset, but against a quicker brain or more rugged frame he was sorely handicapped.

Berlenbach and his advisors insist that the Risko bout will not deter the light heavyweight titleholder from his determination to move on in the heavyweight division of the prize ring industry. At the moment, however, Berlenbach is faced with the necessity of staying within the 175-pound limit regardless of the weight of the men he meets. Possibly after he loses the light heavyweight title to Jack Delaney, a happening which seems almost certain he may put on the poundage that will make him a contender in the class above.

It is to be hoped that Palace team does not have to use subtraction instead of addition in the

Griffs Invited To Train at Orlando

Washington and Reds May Combine at Tampa, However.

Griffith Is Tiring of His Camp; Diamond Now in Shape.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

TAMPA, March 22.—This spring training camp proposition seems to be getting more and more complicated every day. President Griffith makes no secret of the fact that conditions here are not of the best and it would not take much to make him shift elsewhere next season. True, he is under a long-term contract with the city of Tampa, which still has a number of years to run, but he has sufficient excuse for breaking it.

President August Hermann of the Cincinnati Reds accompanied his team here for today's game and again put a proposition to Griffith for him to bring the Nats to Orlando next year, the plan being for the two clubs to build a big clubhouse large enough to board and keep all of the players and for them to get in condition together, with numerous practice games being played between the two combinations.

The Washington club head could not hear this proposition at all, but came back with a counter offer of training with the Reds here. It would not be at all surprising if this suggestion did not receive considerable consideration in Redland, other support.

ORLANDO is situated at least 100 miles away from every other big league camp, which makes it mighty hard for the Cincinnati outfit to get games. The Nats, for instance, met the Reds here today, but absolutely refused to book a return battle.

One reason why Griffith's proposition may be looked upon favorably by the Reds is that they can get away from the present camp at a good profit. They own the grounds they use at Orlando and already have turned down offers which would not net them a good profit.

But while President Griffith, although not satisfied here, is making propositions which will keep the Nats in Tampa for several more years, Manager Bucky Harris is boosting Winter Haven as the ideal training camp city and has suggested to the Old Fox that he make a few inquiries as to what kind of a deal he can make there.

While the Nats were in Sarasota, Saturday, several more loads of clay were rolled into the field here and it is now in first-class shape, but it must be remembered that the team is on the verge of leaving and drilled for five weeks on a mighty

1,000 TO SEEK U. S. TITLE IN GOLF

New Rule to Double Entry List of Last Year.

NEW YORK, March 22 (By A. P.).—Extension of the qualification test for the open golf championship from three to seven sectional tournaments will more than double the 1925 entry of 445 players, golf officials said today.

Limitations of the fixture in the past offering financial burdens which discouraged young and obscure professionals have been overcome in the new plan, they pointed out. Under the change, 120 players will be qualified this year at the sectional tests, as against 96 last season, and to those will be added the first 30 to finish in the 1925 final, members of the Walker cup team and foreign players.

COURSES for the sectional tournaments and qualification plans for the amateur championship will be decided at a meeting of the executive committee here next month when restoration of the amateur qualifying field to 32 players will be considered.

Reduction in the number of qualifiers to sixteen last year eliminated many of the stars of former title tournaments.

J. Harris Ousts Tobin As Regular Outfielder

Tampa, Fla., March 22.—Manager Stanley Harris announced late tonight that he has decided to give Joe Harris, the regular right field job in the Washington line-up. "I have been giving the matter considerable thought," he said, "and feel that I simply can not afford to have the heavy-hitting 'Moon' during bench duty.

This is no reflection on Tobin's ability, Harris made it plain, but Tobin is always a slow spring starter and the Nats need J. Harris' punch. Johnny will be kept around for outfield duty purposes for which he is expected to share with McNeely. In games where the Nats obtain the lead, one of this pair will be used to strengthen up the defense. Earl against southpaw pitching and Tobin against the right handers.

Cobb Gambling on Hurlers, Says Pegler in Review of Club

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 22.—There's a fellow down here by the name of Cobb, a bland, blond party, with a gentle, almost loving manner about him, who can't be the same Ty Cobb he used to be because the old Ty Cobb was neither bland nor gentle, though blond.

This Cobb down here has been known to walk up to a recruit ball-player who was flopping around the plate and failing the air in the batting practice of the Detroit Tigers and call him "son" and show him how to hit the ball without flopping around the plate or failing the air. If J. Pierpont Morgan should stop at an alleyway crap game and coach one of the combatants in the mathematical probabilities of the gamble, a large number of editorial writers would explain their several versions of "For goodness' sake!" for this would be very unusual, but no more astonishing than the gentleness which has suddenly possessed Ty Cobb, the quondam scratching tomcat of baseball.

IN the years he has been managing the ball club that he once served as a mere lay athlete, Ty Cobb has been accused, with what justice it is impossible for an outsider to say, of multiplying a lot of excellent baseball by harassing and tormenting his men.

A genius himself, and the model of all ball players, including some who dislike him religiously, Cobb was said to be impatient of mental or physical awkwardness in others on his club. His pitchers seemed obliged to look to him in center field for their signals and all other hands were said to be working under a regime of terrorism.

Whether his ball players lost ball games by honest inability to win, or whether they were befuddled by the constant threat of Ty's explosive reproaches, is a topic for the cracker-barrel philosophers of the stove league. Any way, they didn't win a pennant when it was thought they should and there's been much curiosity as to whether Ty Cobb's players would have done better under a regime of sweetness and joy and love.

This curiosity seems in a fair way to be satisfied this year for this new Ty Cobb in the Tigers' training camp bears no more resemblance to the old one than the late James Whitcomb Riley bore to Julius Caesar, deceased. Ty was wearing smoked-glasses

New York, March 22 (By A. P.).—Willie Hoppe will defend his world's 18.1 balkline billiard title in a 3-600 point match against Jake Schaefer, former world's 18.2 champion, at Dwyer's Broadway academy in New York during the week of March 29. The representatives of Hoppe and Schaefer completed negotiations for the match and forfeit money was posted here today. Boston, Chicago and Philadelphia promoters had sought the match.

Nats Absorb Another Beating

Ferguson's Wildness Aids in Winning Runs of Red.

Johnson Holds Foes to Single Counter in 3 Innings.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

TAMPA, Fla., March 22.—The Nationals do not seem to be going anywhere in particular in the 1926 Grapefruit league. This afternoon they dropped their sixth game in eight starts when the Cincinnati Reds handed them a 3-2 trimming. As the game was played, it did not look as though Lady Luck wanted Washington to win, for she frowned twice when winning rallies seemed just in the offing.

In the sixth, for instance, after Goslin had led off with a walk, Hudgens made a diving catch of a mile-a-minute grasser off Joe Judge's bat, while, with but one down, the Nats a tally behind, and Bluege on third and Myer on first in the eighth, Luck again failed. Tate up, met one right on the nose for what looked like a sure double down the third base line. Pinelli made a backhand stab for the ball and found it in his glove when he came down to earth, easily doubling up Ossie. The game ended there and then.

Harris started with the line-up which is likely to face the Macks in the season's opener, with Johnson and Ruel as the battery, and Peck at short. Although the old master grabbed six hits in the three frames he toiled, he looked better than these figures would indicate. On three different occasions the Red batters were pulling away from fast ones which hit their bats for safeties.

ALEXANDER FERGUSON and Harry Kelley shared the mound burden with the "Big Train," while John May and Bud Bradford, Springer, two southpaws, and Clyde Day, did the mound work for the Reds. They granted eight hits collectively, as against ten made off the Washington flingers.

Hendricks' men broke the ice in the second on singles by Walker and Critz and Hargrave's sacrifice fly, and but for a fine peg by Goslin and a good catch by Ruel, they would have had another in the third when Roush, following his double, was killed at the plate when he tried to register on Pipp's single shot to left.

In the third, the Nats knotted the count when Tobin beat out a hunt, stole second, and came home on Rice's single over second.

Ferguson walked two in the sixth and these passes, coupled with Hargrave's double and another of the same proportions by Roush, gave the Reds a lead which they never relinquished. It looked as though the Harris-men would pull the game out of the fire in the eighth, but, as chronic above, the sketch was not written that way. Goslin opened this frame with a one-baser but was forced out midway by Judge. Bluege then tripled Joe home, and, after Myer coaxed a pass, Pinelli snared Tate's would-be double and it was all over but the shouting.

Tilden Beats Chapin In Match at Atlanta

Atlanta, Ga., March 22 (By A. P.).—William Tilden, second, playing in an exhibition tennis match at Georgia Military academy here this afternoon defeated Alfred H. Chapin, of Springfield, Mass., 6-3, 7-5. Paired with Mrs. Charlotte Chapin, of Springfield, Mass., in the doubles, Tilden was defeated, 6-4, 6-1, by Chapin and "Hop" Owens, of Atlanta.

In the second set of the singles Tilden was forced to extend himself to beat his young opponent. Chapin was three straight games to duce the set before the champion struck his pace. In the doubles both teams were handicapped by a short court.

Handicapper Selects Prince Regent as Best at Mobile.

By BERT E. COLLYER, CALIGULA.

ROSLIE seems a shade the best of these performing in the juvenile event which is first on the card.

For the fifth heat RASULI is well suited by the weight and distance and should get home in front.

It looks as though GENTRY should beat the field in the closing heat of the day.

Small fields will contest at Mobile. The track is heavy and anything is liable to happen even though "Mexican Joe" the famous former rider is in the charge.

PRINCE REGENT, a graded starter in the fourth race, looks like the jammy good thing of the afternoon. If they beat this one it will be due to some "unknown" cause.

CHICK UP should show improvement and be hard to trim in the opener, while SERVITOR looks best in the second.

For the third PADLOCK has GEN CABORN for trim.

BOWIE'S MEET ATTRACTS MY OWN

Grayson Horse Now Is Rounding Into Better Form.

BALTIMORE, March 22.—Admiral Cary T. Grayson's King James stallion My Own is the horse he was in 1923, when Zev and In Memoriam were the only American 3-year-olds that had any business racing with him, and even they had to be right to beat him over a distance of ground.

He bleeds occasionally, both in work and racing. But he has been right good in Florida this winter and is coming to Bowie with Florence Nightingale and Donna Barton fit enough to give an excellent account of himself in the April racing of the Southern Maryland Agricultural association that will begin the week of March 29.

My Own, Florence Nightingale and Donna Barton were under the management of William Martin at Hialeah park through January and February. Thomas Moran trained them and will bring them to Prince George's park.

The King James horse ran his best race February 15, when, under 120 pounds, he defeated Kings Ransom, Lancer, The Poet and Diagram in a dash of 1 mile and a sixteenth.

His only defeat came in a 1 mile and a sixteenth race, negotiated in 1:45 1/5. In front after the first quarter, he stepped the first mile in 1:38 2/5. He had previously bowed to Picketer and Buck in the Ormond handicap, a $5,000 dash of 1 mile and a sixteenth.

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE, a daughter of Man o' War and The Nurse, which Admiral Grayson bought last year from Walter M. Jeffords after she had won a revival of the Coaching Club American Oaks, a $15,000 gallop of one mile and three furlongs at Belmont park, is a 2-year-old now and racing more consistently than she did at 3.

She was good enough February 24 to gallop one mile and seventy yards in 1:43, the first mile in 1:38 2/5. In front of Mr. Pepp, Marconi, Tiercel, Cliche and Little Celt in the Punta Gorda handicap, she had previously licked South Wind, Chrysalis, Gena Vera and Gliding Fox at one mile and seventy yards in 1:42 4/5.

Not many horses were beating South Wind at Hialeah. Donna Barton is a 3-year-old daughter of Sir Barton and she is a half sister of War Pennant. Admiral Grayson bought her last fall from Commander J. K. L. Ross, of Montreal, who bred her and won a purse with her.

CINCINNATI MAY TRAIN AT TAMPA WITH NATS

poor excuse for a diamond. Add to this the fact that the horse races detract from the players' attention in the afternoon and the dog races in the evening and it is easy to figure out the cause of the Harris-men's dissatisfaction.

MANAGER HARRIS and his team held a meeting in the clubhouse right after luncheon today to discuss the purpose of discussing signals. They were used against the Giants Saturday, but there were several slips and today's session was called in order to "rub them in" the player's minds.

George Todd, a friend of Ossie Bluege, worked out at short in the Harris-men's drill this morning. He is a somnolent who soon will join his team in Iowa.

At this morning's session, which was only the first of a series in the afternoon game present, a new first sacker was uncovered in the person of Johnny Tobin. This veteran showed that he knew all of the tricks of covering the initial snap and the way to toss the ball around the diamond gave the lie to the stories coming out of St. Louis that his wing was dead.

Joe Bush is half sick with a bad cold, picked up on the motor trip back from Sarasota. He took his regular work-out this morning, however, and together with Stan Scales, he is expected to help Ruethe with the mound work in Wednesday's game. The veterans will do most of the flinging from now on, Manager Harris says.

Pitcher Irving Hadley signed a contract with the Nats this morning. This does not necessarily mean that he has earned himself a regular job with the team, however, as Manager Harris took great pains to state that "Bump" is still on trial.

Pitchers Larry Schuch and Arthur Humphrey will leave the Nat camp tomorrow the former heading for his home in New York city and the latter for the Old Dominion, where he is slated to join the Kingston team of the Virginia State League. President Griffith is trying to lead berth for Alf's little brother and, if he is unsuccessful, will give him his unconditional release. In the case of the young southpaw, he has been promised another chance next year provided he makes good with Kingston.

Voorhees, Kelley, Lady Finelli, Collins also up.

COACH GUYON BUSY WITH TEAMS

Football, Track, Cage and Baseball Men Active Today.

SOMEWHAT peculiar and unique situation exists in the athletic calendar of activities at Eastern high school today, when all of its four major sports teams will be in action. While only one competitive contest takes place, nevertheless it presents an odd spectacle which seldom happens even in the leading colleges.

The members of the football, track and baseball teams will be in action in nothing more than mere training paces, but the basketball squad will see serious action when it engages the Epiphany Juniors in the preliminary to the Wonder Five contest at 7:15 o'clock.

Coach Guyon will have his hands full of work, guiding, as he does, the destinies of all but the track team. The track team is coached by George's park.

The first baseball practice of the season was held yesterday and consisted of only a light workout. The players were not even uniformed and just tossed the ball around among themselves playing catch. No hitting or fielding practice of any kind was held and the practice was excused after a short drill.

Coach Guyon will send his diamond hopefuls along at a much faster pace during the rest of the week and hopes to have a pretty good line on his team then, so that he can put a fairly strong club on the field against the Warwick in a practice game next Monday.

"Any club that hasn't a star shortstop and a star at second base may as well realize that it has no better than an accidental chance of winning," he said. "These two positions are marked from that day. He began the season in the employ of Willis Sharpe Kilmer, but his form was indifferent, and Kilmer let him go when he reorganized his stable and riding staff after the Sunny Man 'poisoning' incident. Afterward Wallace drifted from track to track. He went to Canada in July, but was refused permission to ride. He then proceeded to Kentucky.

Suspicion pointed at Wallace for some time, but the first direct intimation that he was mixed up in the Kentucky scandal came during the Miami meeting, when after a visit by a member of the Kentucky racing commission he was indefinitely suspended.

No reason was announced by the stewards, but it was taken for granted even at that time that his riding was the cause of his suspension.

"A CLUB may slide along with a good attack and a good defense, but, after a while, it will reach that hot part of the season when the championship club is beginning to show its class. Then you must have pitchers who can bear down and pitch themselves out of jams without depending altogether on the defense.

"We need pitchers who can bear down, and that seems to come only with experience. Of course, I have George Daus, who has the experience, but I haven't a whole staff like him."

The Tigers used Fred Haney considerably at third base last year and Cobb says the only trouble with Haney was that he had small hands. There is now a competition between Bill Mullen and Jack Warner for the job. At any rate, Cobb seems satisfied that he will derive a good third baseman, and he also seems content of a capable catcher, who from Gehrig or Frank O'Rourke at second.

Gehrig was farmed out to the Toronto club for experience and he is now an impressive training camp specimen. Among some of the wandering experts who have been through Augusta believe he is still a year away, as they say.

Tavener, a good felder, but an uncertain hitter, will be entered at short and Lou Blew at first.

The catchers, as a group, compare well with any of their competitors, for there is John Bassler, with good athletic ability and a head full of information regarding batters and hitters; there is Larry Woodall, who was used against left-handed pitchers, and there is Clyde Manion, who has been seasoning for the last two years with occasional visits to the major leagues.

TWO of the outfield positions, manned by Cobb, himself, and Harry Heilmann, couldn't ask for better guardianship, and the third one will be populated by Red Wingo, who seems to top Helme Matusch and Fothergill.

Daus and Earl Whitehill, who was named by Bucky Harris as one of the five best pitchers in the American league, are the main reliance as pitchers, going into the season. Rip Collins is tentatively included as one of the regulars but he is a doubtful member and erratic.

as Cobb says, pitching is a game with his arm and he will get the best he can from Lili Stoner, Ed Wells, Holloway, Clyde Barfoot, Lefty Johns and Jess Doyle. Stoner, Holloway and Barfoot are giving Cobb no little encouragement. Over Carroll, the college fellow, has not lived up to his tradition so far in this training season. He gave eight runs in one inning a few days ago.

BAN ON STUTTS IS SHOCK Overtakes Faithless Jockeys

By COLIN PORTER. THE sword of Damocles, which has been hanging over Kentucky racing since last summer, has fallen. The casualties are six jockeys and three owners and trainers. To them every race track in the world is closed today, and the gates are to remain shut for life.

The jockeys ruled off for life for "practices inimical to the best interests of the turf," as the commission's order puts it, are Harry Stutts, Jimmy Wallace, J. A. Mooney, D. Mergler, L. Harvey and G. Noel. The owners are the Williams brothers and one Tommy Devereaux. Like the riders, their sentences are for life.

The banishment of Red Stutts was a shock. The identity of most of the owners and riders who were the ring leaders in the scandal has been generally known for some time, but there never had been a whisper about Stutts. A jockey who was ranked with the best in his calling, and commanded big fees for his services, he was generally regarded as being beyond corruption. His is the saddest case of all. His confederates may have some excuse, but he has none.

STUTTS and Wallace are the best known of the jockeys in the East. The other four are what is known in the vernacular as Kentucky riders, confining their activities to the Blue Grass and Western tracks.

Wallace has ridden in the East for years and at one time had a tremendous following in Maryland, where he rode with exceptional success for several seasons. Still he carried a tainted reputation. He was placed in that odorous class of "money riders," meaning that he only gave his best when he stood to win a big bet or got a large fee.

Just a year ago Wallace underwent an operation in Baltimore on his stomach which had been troubling him constantly, and his decline was marked from that day. He began the season in the employ of Willis Sharpe Kilmer, but his form was indifferent, and Kilmer let him go when he reorganized his stable and riding staff after the Sunny Man "poisoning" incident. Afterward Wallace drifted from track to track. He went to Canada in July, but was refused permission to ride. He then proceeded to Kentucky.

ALOYS PLAY WONDERS TONIGHT

Epiphany and Eastern Will be Seen in Preliminary.

An excellent basketball game will be offered local sports fans in the Arcade auditorium, tonight when a double attraction will be staged at popular prices.

The main attraction will involve the undefeated Holman Wonder Five and the Aloysius tossers, who are making a great bid to retain the unlimited title gained during 1924-25. This game is scheduled to begin at 7:15 o'clock.

A preliminary which will rival the main attraction in interest will be played between the champion Epiphany Juniors and the Eastern high school basketball team, both of whom have compiled impressive records during the current season and with Radice and Hecke missing from the lineup the church lads will not be forced to undergo a weight handicap, which would be present otherwise. The teams are evenly matched in every respect and should provide an interesting contest.

THE Wonders will present a line-up selected as the all-time best by local experts. Their roster will include Moser, Bender, Weber, Connelley, MacDonnell, Redie, and Houghton, who will appear in the Wonder line-up at the termination of tonight's game with Epiphany.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action: it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchitis, asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga.—Ad.

Be sure to get real Resinol

If you want to get rid of eczema, pimples or some other distressing skin eruption, insist upon obtaining Resinol Ointment in the original package. It is put up in opal jars, two sizes only—3½ oz. and 1½ oz. Preparations similar in name or appearance and those offered as for Resinol are not "just the same as Resinol." Many of them have little healing power, and may even be dangerous to use. Resinol is never sold in bulk.

THE THREE MUSKETEERS

"The Anjou Wine"

GREAT MYSTERY AND ADVENTURE SERIES

By ALEXANDER DUMAS

Continuity by Ruth J. Williams; Illustrated by Nicholas Alosky

Read this and follow the story:

One of his attackers killed. The other confessed he was acting on Milady's orders.

Some time later Milady received a dozen bottles of Anjou wine. The messenger said came from Portos and Aramis.

He was about to drink some of the gift when he heard a great noise. The musketeers had rejoined the company and were approaching his door.

A lacker who stole a glass of Portos wine died in agony. And we sent you no wine. The musketeers told their friend. Thus Milady failed a third time.

ADVISORY COUNCIL IS CALLED MENACE AT TRADE SESSION

F. P. Leetch Declares District Heads Should Heed Stable Organizations.

PROPOSAL TO INCREASE WATER RATES OPPOSED

Full Board Tonight Will Act On Report of Executive Committee.

The citizens advisory council and the proposal of the House to increase the water rate 25 per cent were sharply criticized at a meeting of the executive committee of the Board of Trade yesterday.

The attack on the council was led by Frank P. Leetch, who denounced it as "the most dangerous menace in the city today." The denunciation of the council was provoked by a letter from Col. Bell on the Fourteenth street extension bill, in which he said in part:

"I am in full accord with your views that the commissioners should keep in close touch with interested property owners and others relative to legislative and budget matters, and have initiated steps to that end during the past two years."

Conflict is Seen.

It was the reference, presumably to the council at the end of the sentence that drew the ire of Mr. Leetch. "It is time that the commissioners paid attention to the wishes of the established organizations which really represent the city," he asserted. "At present we have a situation in which the advisory council votes for one bill and the Federation of Citizens Associations votes against the same measure." Mr. Leetch concluded.

The executive committee also voted against the House provision in the District bill for a 25 per cent increase in the city water rate. Francis R. Weller, a consulting engineer, and chairman of the water supply committee, in recommending that the trade body oppose the proposed increase, pointed out that the net operating income from the water supply was more than $300,000, and that the entire cost of operation was derived from water revenue. In spite of the fact that the Federal government uses 18 per cent of the District water, no part of operation cost is paid from the general District fund to which the government contributes a lump sum.

Board Meets Tonight.

The adverse report of the water supply committee on the rate increase approved by the executive committee yesterday will be submitted to the full membership of the board for final action at the regular monthly meeting tonight in the Willard hotel.

The committee authorized an appropriation of $100 to be given to the community center department of the public schools for the July 4 celebration.

The following persons were elected members of the trade body: L. T. Bussler, George A. Sharp, E. G. Bender, Bernard Broskamp, Dwight Clark, George E. Edelin, Arnold C. Engel, William C. Peely, Randolph L. Jennings, C. H. McClain, R. H. Spidel, George H. Spink and C. Raymond Wire.

West End Citizens Vote To Revise Council Methods

The West End Citizens association voted unanimously to revise the methods of the citizens advisory council so as to make it "more representative of the people of the District of Columbia" at a meeting last night in Corcoran hall, Twenty-first and H streets northwest.

The action was on a resolution presented by M. F. Finley, chairman of a committee appointed to investigate the council, stipulating that the delegates of the association to the Federation of Citizens associations should be given discretionary power to vote "either for the abolition of the council or for a radical revision of its methods."

The association voted to buy the first acre of the Shenandoah National park in the drive by business men to raise Washington's share of the fund for the purchase of the park ground. The treasurer was directed to send a check to the committee headed by Col. Robert N. Harper, in charge of the drive, at once.

The association voted to oppose the increase of 25 per cent in the water rate proposed in a bill before Congress. It was declared that if the government contributed toward payment of the 18 per cent of the water of the District used by there would be no such suggestion needed.

R. H. Weightman, assistant forecaster of the weather bureau, gave an illustrated lecture on the work of the bureau. Luther Linkins, president, presided.

Man Loses $1,000 Ring In Matching Pennies

Uriah L. Starnes, of Ballground, Ga., stopping at the Capital Park hotel, lost his love for matching pennies and a $1,000 ring at the same time last night, according to the story he told police. Starnes engaged in the penny-matching game with two men, one of whom he met shortly after arriving at the hotel.

When Starnes lost the few dollars he had in change, he wanted to quit. The two men insisted that he continue to play until he had lost his $1,000 ring. He was willing to do this, but the men refused to guarantee that he would pay them if he lost. He did, when the men disappeared in the darkness at Fifth and I streets northwest.

Civil War Veteran Sues for Property

Franklin Jones, colored, veteran of the civil war, who says he is 99 years old and can not read or write, who lives at 1605 Kramer street northeast, filed suit yesterday in equity court against William H. Thomas, 305 Ninth street northeast, for an accounting.

Through Attorneys Merrick and Kennedy, the veteran says that he arranged through Thomas to buy the Kramer street home in 1921 for $1,250, and to pay $250 down and the balance at the rate of $10 a month or more out of his pension. Jones now says that he has paid $1,250 and has no need to show for his payments.

JURY INDICTS WOMAN ON CHARGE OF MURDER

Accused of Shooting Man Following Argument in U Street Northwest.

MAN HELD IN CHECK CASE

Bessie A. Alexander, colored, was indicted yesterday by the grand jury on a charge of first degree murder. It is charged that the woman shot Devote Woolridge, also colored, on February 27 last at 512 U street northwest, following an argument. The bullet that killed Woolridge was fired through a glass door.

Robert H. Nelson, alias Gabriel Rosenthal, was indicted on a charge of false pretenses. The indictment charges that on June 6, 1924, he deposited with the Second National Bank of this city, a check for $8,000 drawn on the First National Bank of St. Louis, Mo., and fraudulently drew against the check for amounts totalling $3,768.

Wilbur Thomas and John Brown, both colored, were indicted on a charge of violating the smoke screen law. Sergeant William H. Adams, of the Twelfth precinct stopped a car containing the defendants for a failure to have a tail light and, he alleged, found a smoke screen outfit in the car. It was not attached. The defendants were arrested on Rhode Island avenue northeast, on February 23.

Norman W. Dettor was exonerated on a charge of homicide resulting from the death of Rosemary Corby, 18 months old. The baby died as a result of a collision between a car in which she was riding, and one driven by Dettor, the police charged. The collision occurred at Fifteenth street and New York avenue northwest, on February 9. The baby was riding with her mother. The names of other persons indicted and the charges against them will be found in the daily legal record of The Post.

GIRL, GOING TO CHURCH WITH MOTHER, MISSING

Gladys Howard, 14, Said to Have Done Away With All Pictures of Her.

Washington police were asked yesterday by Virginia authorities to look for Gladys Howard, 14-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howard, of Fort Myer Heights, Va., who disappeared Sunday night.

The mother appealed to Sheriff Howard B. Fields to find his daughter. She said her daughter was accompanying her to the church at Cherrydale Sunday night but that she was early in the morning at the home of a son, Frank Howard, to visit. While the mother was talking Gladys went out into the yard and later, when her mother went to look for her, had disappeared.

Gladys, who is a blonde, is large for her age and wears a boyish bob, has no boy or girl friends, her mother said. When she disappeared she had on a green dress, black fur coat and tan shoes. She had no money with her, the mother says, who discovered yesterday that the girl had destroyed or taken away every picture of herself in the house.

Police were asked yesterday to search for Lillian Gesling, 15 years old, and Mary Byrd, 12 years old, who disappeared yesterday from 722 H street southwest. The girls are wards of the Board of Children's Guardians.

BYRD'S POLAR PLANE NAMED AFTER GIRL

Will Be Called Josephine Ford in Honor of Edsel Ford's Daughter.

The three-engine Fokker airplane in which Lieut. Comdr. Richard E. Byrd expects to fly to the north pole this summer will be called the Josephine Ford, in honor of the 3-year-old daughter of Edsel Ford. The name was chosen because of the great interest taken by Edsel Ford in the promotion of commercial aviation in this country. Lieut. Comdr. Byrd announced yesterday.

Lieut. Comdr. Byrd expects to sail from New York for Kings bay, where the polar flight begins, April 1. He has inspected the Chantier, the ship to carry his plane to Kings bay, and found it in excellent condition. It is large enough to carry the plane below decks.

John Szemper, of Philadelphia, who has been on duty at the quartermaster's office of the U. S. marine corps here, resigned Saturday to go as a signalman on the Chantier, in the polar expedition.

Congressional Luncheon. The congressional unit of Neighborhood house has announced a luncheon to be given at the settlement, 470 N street southwest, at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, to which all women of the congressional group have been invited. Mrs. C. J. Sproul, 1628 R street and Mrs. E. A. Stephens, of Congress hall, are in charge of reservations.

THIRD OF DRUNKEN DRIVERS DECLARED TO ESCAPE PENALTY

Chicagoan, Here for Safety Council, Bases Report on 185 Cities.

HOOVER WILL ADDRESS SESSION THIS MORNING

American Drivervelf Association Protests Classification as Common Carrier.

Basing his statement on reports from the police chiefs of 185 representative cities, Marcus A. Dow, of Chicago, declared yesterday that 33 per cent of the drunken automobile drivers arrested last year went unpunished.

Mr. Dow, who represents the Stewart-Warner Safety council, is here to attend the second national conference on street and highway safety, which will start this morning in the Chamber of Commerce building, with 1,000 delegates in attendance. Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover will call the conference to order and will make the keynote speech.

In his statement yesterday Mr. Dow said: "We found that only 21 per cent of the drivers arrested for intoxication were sent to jail and 46 per cent fined. In 33 per cent of the cases the prisoner either was discharged or sentence suspended. Of these arrested for speeding or reckless driving and who were not drunk, only 46 per cent were fined and 1 per cent sent to jail."

Urges Tighter Enforcement. "Every automobile with an intoxicated driver at the wheel becomes a potential death car and every car in the hands of a reckless driver a deadly weapon. It is obvious that if the automobile death and injury record is to be improved and the streets and highways made safer for the people, there must be a decided tightening up in the enforcement of law against drunken and reckless drivers."

The District of Columbia was one of the 185 cities covered in the survey made by Mr. Dow, but the percentage of drunken drivers who went unpunished here was not given.

A preliminary conference was held yesterday afternoon at which representatives of various organizations and firms were permitted to protest proposed or existing laws. The hearing was conducted by a committee headed by Ernest Greenwood.

Classification Opposed.

Representatives of the American Drivervelf association protested against the classification of the drivervelf type of automobile as a common carrier, taxicab or omnibus. There are now 5,000,000 drivervelf patrons in this country and unless the business is hindered by unfair laws, the number will be four times that in a few years. H. C. Grossman, of Chicago, and Joseph Saunders, of Kansas City, told the committee.

M. C. McConkey, vice president of the Bendix Brake Co., told the committee that if a certain section in the report of the safety conference were carried through, the cost of installing brakes would become unacceptably excessive.

Joseph D. Myerson, of New York, urged the committee to clarify the proposed certificate of title act so that the holders of liens on automobiles would be better protected.

DAMAGES ARE ASKED IN DEATH OF 2 BOYS

Suit for $10,000 Filed in Each Case; Both Hit by Autos.

Mrs. Gertrude R. Sures, administratrix of the estate of Martin Sures, seven years old, deceased, filed suit yesterday in circuit court against Charles S. Newlin to recover $10,000 damages. Through Attorneys Newmyer and King it is charged that the boy was run down and killed by an automobile driven by the defendant at Thirteenth and Buchanan streets northwest on January 3 last.

The John E. Cunningham Co., 316 Seventh street northwest, was sued for a total of $15,000 damages by Alfred H. Bennett and his wife, Mrs. Isabel Bennett, 520 E street northwest, for injuries alleged to have been received by Mrs. Bennett in the store of the defendant concern on June 4 last when the plaster fell from the ceiling. Attorneys Yeatman, Canfield and Splain appeared for the plaintiffs.

Alice L. Dorsey, administratrix of the estate of Richard J. Strickland, 6 years old, deceased, filed suit against the District government for $10,000 damages for the boy's death. Through Attorneys Whelan and O'Connell it is charged that the boy was struck by a District automobile at First and K streets northeast on March 24, 1925.

Straw Vote Favors Double-Deck Buses

Officials of the Washington Rapid Transit Co. said yesterday the straw ballot of motorbus patrons on whether Washington should have more double-deck buses was completed and that tabulated results would be submitted to the public utilities commission today.

It was said that the vote had gone overwhelmingly in favor of more high buses.

Has Had Wide Experience in Serving Government in Efficiency Matters.

Walter W. Warwick, of this city, yesterday was appointed chairman of the personnel classification board, to succeed Frederick W. Bailey, who will assume duties as a budget officer in charge of the District of Columbia and the Department of the Interior.

The position is not new to Mr. Warwick, who served as the first chairman of the board. He will represent the director of the bureau of the budget on the board, besides serving as chairman.

The change was made, it was announced, so that Mr. Bailey could give his full time as a budget officer. The reappointment of Mr. Warwick is regarded as one having far-reaching importance to the personnel of the government.

The personnel of the board, which has charge of the personnel affairs for most of the government's civil employees, excepting the Postoffice Department, as now constituted, consist of Mr. Warwick, chairman; Guy Moffett, representative of the civil service commission, and W. H. McReynolds, representative of the bureau of efficiency.

Others on Board.

Mr. Warwick has had considerable experience as an efficiency director, having received many official government appointments of this character. He was appointed an associate justice of the Supreme Court of Panama Canal Zone in 1911, but before assuming these duties, he was appointed a government economy and efficiency commissioner.

Mr. Bailey became chairman of the board June 30, 1923, and will serve until the present change becomes effective, possibly in a few days. Mr. Bailey, at present, is on a short trip through the Western States on business for the bureau of the budget.

Commenting on the appointment of Mr. Warwick, Dr. Ellery C. Stowell, president of the Civil Service league, said last night: "It is to be hoped that under Mr. Warwick the policy of the bureau of the budget in its subservience to Senator Smoot will be abandoned and the personnel classification act will be enforced faithfully."
